House defeats Senate SS benefits hike bill

By HOWARD FIELDS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House refused 190 to 185 Friday to allow Senate passed increases in Social Security benefits next April 1 in the face of White House threats of a presidential veto of a bill extending the national debt ceiling.

The Social Security amendment called for a 5.6 per cent increase in benefits for some 30 million elderly Americans, but White House domestic Adviser Melvin R. Laird said he would "certainly recommend a veto" unless Congress "faces up to financing" the increase.

House GOP leaders relayed word of the White House position as lengthy debate on the Social Security amendment replaced arguments on an antibombing amendment that was deleted in an earlier vote.

In a cliffhanging vote, the House refused to recede from its original debt ceiling and instructed conferees to renegotiate the measure with the Senate.

By voting the increases down, the House saved President Nixon from the onerous task of vetoing the measure.

Colson deposition alleges

Mitchell aware of bug plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's chief adviser, H.R. Haldeman, acknowledged in January that he knew of meetings the year before in the office of Attorney General John N. Mitchell at which plans that led to the Watergate bugging were discussed, it was alleged Friday.

Charles W. Colson, a former special counsel to Nixon, said in a sworn statement he was so "shocked and startled" to learn shortly after the first of the year that Mitchell and former White House Counsel John W. Dean III had been at such meetings that he went to Haldeman to tell him.

"Mr. Haldeman said to me that he knew about Mr. Dean's attendance at those meetings...," Colson said. "Mr. Haldeman said that Mr. Dean had already told him about it, that he was aware of it."

Colson's statement —contained in a sworn pre-trial deposition in a Watergate related civil suit — contrasted sharply with a similar deposition given by Haldeman a month ago.

In it, Haldeman said he had "no recollection" of getting such a report from Dean, though he was perhaps "willing to accept that as a possibility."

The Colson deposition, taken May 28 and released Friday, appeared to corroborate Dean's testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee this week in which he said he told Haldeman in early March, 1972, of attending the meetings and that he tried to cut off the discussions of political espionage.

"Mr. Haldeman said to me...that when Mr. Dean heard the proposals he turned them off," Colson said in the deposition. "Mr. Haldeman said that he had been advised of that by Dean, but that Dean had acted in a very proper capacity in that he turned off those discussions when he heard them."

As Colson's deposition was made public, he appeared on Capitol Hill for closed-door questioning by a House armed services subcommittee about attempts to involve the CIA in the Watergate affair. E. Howard Hunt Jr., a Colson protege who pleaded guilty to the Watergate plot in January, told the subcommittee Thursday that Colson had "smoothed the way" for his contacts with the CIA in connection with White House undercover work.

Congress yields on bombing

Compromise with Nixon stops raids August 15

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress, fearing a constitutional crisis, compromised its differences with President Nixon today and agreed on an Aug. 15 termination date for U.S. involvement in the Indochina war.

The compromise was hammered out in roll call votes on the House and Senate floors over protests that it sanctions six more weeks of bombing of Cambodia, despite opposition to the air war from clear majorities in both houses.

The House and Senate gave up their fight to cut off funds for the bombing in exchange for an offer from the President relayed through his party leaders to pull out of the war by Aug. 15 unless Congress gives him specific approval to continue.

The compromise was brought to the Senate floor by Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which have cut off all funds for the bombing of Cambodia.

The Fulbright substitute declares:

"Notwithstanding any other provision of law, on or after Aug. 15, 1973, no funds heretofore, herein or hereafter appropriated may be obligated or expended to finance the involvement of the United States military forces in hostilities in or over or from off the shores of North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia."

The House adopted a similar compromise proposal earlier in the day as part of a $3.3 billion supplemental appropriations bill to replace the one Nixon vetoed Wednesday because of the Cambodia bombing ban.

The vote on the compromise was 278 to 124 in the House and 63 to 26 in the Senate.

After accepting the compromise amendment, the Senate passed the bill and sent it to the White House.

In both the House and Senate, leaders said they had White House assurance Nixon would sign the compromise language, and come to Congress if he needs war authority after Aug. 15 and abide by its decision. House Republican Leader Gerald Ford said he had spoken to Nixon by telephone and received that message.

Fulbright said his committee, which approved the compromise 14 to 1, also had assurances, relayed through Republican Leader Hugh Scott from White House chief of staff Melvin R. Laird, that any further bombing of Cambodia would be restrained to "minimize damage to civilian life and property."

But Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., and some other doves protested the compromise.

"This is not accomodation to the chief executive of this country, but a capitulation and an abdication of the powers of the Senate," Mansfield said. He said Congress was guilty of a "cave in" that would mean two more months of death and destruction to "a poor, hapless people who ask only to be left alone."

"No wonder people look upon us with scorn," said Mansfield.

"The compromise we are asked to ratify today," Kennedy said, "will go down in infamy in American history. How can Congress possibly accept this cruel and calculated pact, a pact in which members of the Senate and the House are asked to ratify the unsconcionable and unconstitutional warmaking of the President in recent weeks."

The flurry of developments came in the face of a stalemate between the White House and Congress that threatened to disrupt the machinery of government, with the outcome hanging on the language of antiwar provisions in a $3.3 billion appropriations measure needed to fund various federal agencies.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan was the engineer of the compromise.

At the noon hour, he rushed down the aisle of the House just before it was preparing to vote once again on an amendment which Nixon had vetoed to cut off funds immediately for the bombing of Cambodia.

"Will you hold? Will you hold?" he shouted, grabbing a microphone.

"I have just talked to the President for 10 minutes and he assured me personally that everything I said on the floor was a commitment by him," Ford said.

Rub-a-dub-dub, sailing in a tub to the USSR

By KENNETH J. BRADDICK

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) Leonard Moore set off Friday for Alaska from where he plans to sail in a $15 used bathtub to Russia.

Moore, 48, hopes to launch the 4½-foot standard bathroom tub into the Bering Sea on Independence Day for what could be a journey of anywhere from two to five days to the Russian port city of Uelen.

Why Russia? "Russia just happens to be the closest country you can get to by bathtub," Moore said. "It's the only intercontinental bathtub trip you can make."

The voluble, pipe-smoking Moore, wearing a brightly-colored beanie, posed for pictures on top of his crated enamelled steel tub before setting off in his pickup truck for Seattle. From there, the tub will be flown to Nome for the trip across the Bering Strait.

The tub that he bought originally for $15 from a used bathtub salesman and registered with the California Department of Motor Vehicles for $5 as a "vessel," is stocked with enough food to last for five days.

"I had to cut down on the amount of safety equipment because we could raise only $600," he said. "We were hoping to get $2,000."

Moore, who heads the Community Center across the Bay in West Oakland, will be escorted by a boat with three crew members.

During a trial voyage down the Sacramento River last September, the tub covered 180 miles without mishap, but the escort boat broke down.

The distance between Nome and Uelen-"or anywhere else the Russians say we can land" -could be as short as 62 miles or as long as 162 miles, depending on currents, he said.

The aim of the trip, he said, is to dramatize friendship between the Russian and American people. But he said that letters and cables sent to the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D.C., the Soviet Consulate in San Francisco and to Russian leader Leonid Breshnev during his recent visit to the U.S. seeking permission to go into Russian territory where not acknowledged.

He will be carrying a sheaf of letters from Americans to "the Russian people," and if all goes well plans to return to the U.S. on the escort boat.

Sheriff's car hits woman, 65, knocks her from crosswalk

POMONA — A 65-year-old Pomona woman suffered minor injuries Friday afternoon when she was hit in a crosswalk at Mission Boulevard and Myrtle Street by a county Sheriff's patrol car.

Margaret Lucile Stillion, of 1239 W. 4th St., was treated and released at Pomona Valley Community Hospital following the accident.

According to Pomona police, the accident occured when Mrs. Stillion attempted to cross Mission walking south from Myrtle Street.

An unidentified driver stopped for the woman in the westbound slow lane of Mission, but then drove off when she stepped past the car.

At the sam time Sheriff's Deputy Thomas Leonard Johnson, 25, also westbound on Mission, saw the woman and swerved to the right while jamming on his brakes, police said.

The patrol car hit the woman and knocked her to the pavement.

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — The following ad appeared in Friday's edition of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer:

"My boat and motor has disappeared from Martha Lake, Alderwood Manor, since June 10. I send my wishes that the boat breaks in half in mid-lake and that your mother is unsuccessful in attracting help as she runs barking along the shore."

City leaders rap remap

By TONY NAVARRO
PB Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — The potential policial muscle of Pomona would be weakened by carving the city into two or more state legislative and congressional districts through reapportionment, two Pomona leaders testified here Friday.

The two, Mayor Ray J. Lepire and Bernard V. Ousley, director and chairman of the legislative committee for the Pomona Chamber of Commerce, spoke on the final day of hearings on reapportionment conducted by a panel of three special masters approinted by the State Supreme Court.

Even before Lepire and Ousley made their presentations, speakers before them made repeated references to Pomona as an example of redistricting gone wrong.

Pomona's city limits presently are divided to include portions of the districts of three representatives to the House of Representatives, two to the State Senate and two to the Assembly.

Senate Democrats on Thursday failed in an effort to override Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of a bill reapportioning Assembly, Senate and congressional districts.

The Senate plan reportedly would have divided Pomona even more—into three congressional, three Senate and three Assembly districts.

"If the local citizen is to develop and maintain a high interest in his elected representatives at the state level, it is my opinion that minatining a compactness and the integrity of local cities is very important," said Lepire.

He also submitted a written statement to the three panelists who held the hearings on criteria for reapportionment. Martin K. Coughlin of San Diego, retired from the State Court of Appeals, presided.

"It has become apparent, especially in the present reapportionment proceedings, that the state legislature has held that the state legislators are more interested in protecting their own incumbencies than they are in the interests of creditable representation by state assemblymen and senators," Lepire said in his statement.

Other speakers said the same thing — that state legislators were more interested in protecting incumbents than in coming up with a fair reapportionment plan.

Putnam Livermore, chairman of the GOP Reapportionment Committee, said the state party approved the legislature-passed State Senate reapportionment plan but opposed provisions in the bill for redrawing Assembly and congressional district lines.

Lepire said he supported the position taken by the chamber of commerce and detailed in packets filed with the panel.

Ousley, an attorney, spoke on the chamber position. He suggested that "community of interest" be one of the criteria followed in reapportionment.

Other factors that should be considered, he continued, should be an area's topography, differentations between urban, suburban and rural areas, economic, ties, transportation system links, and other considerations such as city and school district boundaries.

Ousley closed by "imploring you (the panel) not to pay too much attention to special political interests."

The position paper submitted by the chamber shows how mountains on the north and hills on the west and southwest form natural boundaries for the Pomona Valley area.

The paper contains maps depicting various links between cities in eastern Los Angeles County and western portion of San Bernardino County and lists their respective populations.

In response to a question, Lepire said the county line separating the Pomona Valley and West End was not much of a barrier in the ties the two sections had to each other.

Jurisdiction over reapportionment was assumed by the state court after the legislature failed to meet its deadline to reapportion legislative and congressional district by the end of 1972.

If the Senate had overriden the governor, assembly Democrats appeared to have had the necessary two-thirds vote in their house. The Senate version was discussed extensively at the hearing.

The panel of masters is expected to come up with recommendations on reapportionment for the State Supreme Court in August.

Veto promised on bill designed to delay sales tax hike due Sunday

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The legislature adjourned for a five-week vacation Friday night without resolving an impasse with Gov. Ronald Reagan that threatened to trigger an unnecessary sales tax increase beginning Sunday.

Angrily charging "blackmail," "political tricks" and "irresponsible fun and games," Reagan announced he would veto a Democratic-sponsored bill to delay the penny sales tax hike.

The tax increase is unneeded because the state already has stockpiled a huge budget surplus estimated at $829 million.

The Democratic bill (SB425), by Sen. Walter Stiern, D-Bakersfield, would postpone the sales tax bite until Jan. 1 and also grant a one-time 30 per cent income tax rebate, limited to $200 per couple.

"I cannot sign that bill," Reagan told a news conference after it had passed the Senate 33-4 and the Assembly 65-8.

IBM looted for trade secrets; 7 held, 4 sought

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Computer trade secrets of the IBM Corp., worth millions of dollars, have been systematically stolen and sold to competing companies over the past 13 years, police disclosed Friday.

Seven persons were arrested and warrants were issued for four more. District Attorney Louis Bergna said "many many more" warrants would be issued as the investigation continues.

Search warrants were issued covering five computing firms in the computer industry.

"People have been pirating trade secrets from IBM and selling them to other people and other concerns, dating back to 1960," Bergna said.

The thefts so far uncovered dealt with IBM's "Merlin" data storage devices which are used as an adjunct to many of its computers to store and retrieve data. The devices are manufactured at the company's plant in San Jose.

Bergna said it appeared that some of the persons involved in the industrial espionage against the huge computer firm were acting as individuals and that others were involved in a "conspiracy."

IBM security officials asked for the help of public law enforcement agencies in the case four months ago, Bergna said. Since then, an investigation has been conducted throughout the United States.

Those arrested included an IBM engineer picked up at the company's big plant here when it opened Friday. Another was the vice president of a computer equipment producing company.

"I'm sure many, many more warrants will be issued and more arrests made as the investigation continues," Bergna said.

Search warrants covered plants of K and K Manufacturing, Inc., of Campbell, Calif., near San Jose; the Sigma Technology Co., Phoenix, Ariz.; Computer Disc Mastertape, Torrance, Calif.; Forro Precision, Inc., Woodland Hills Calif.; and International Management Systems, Irvine, Calif.

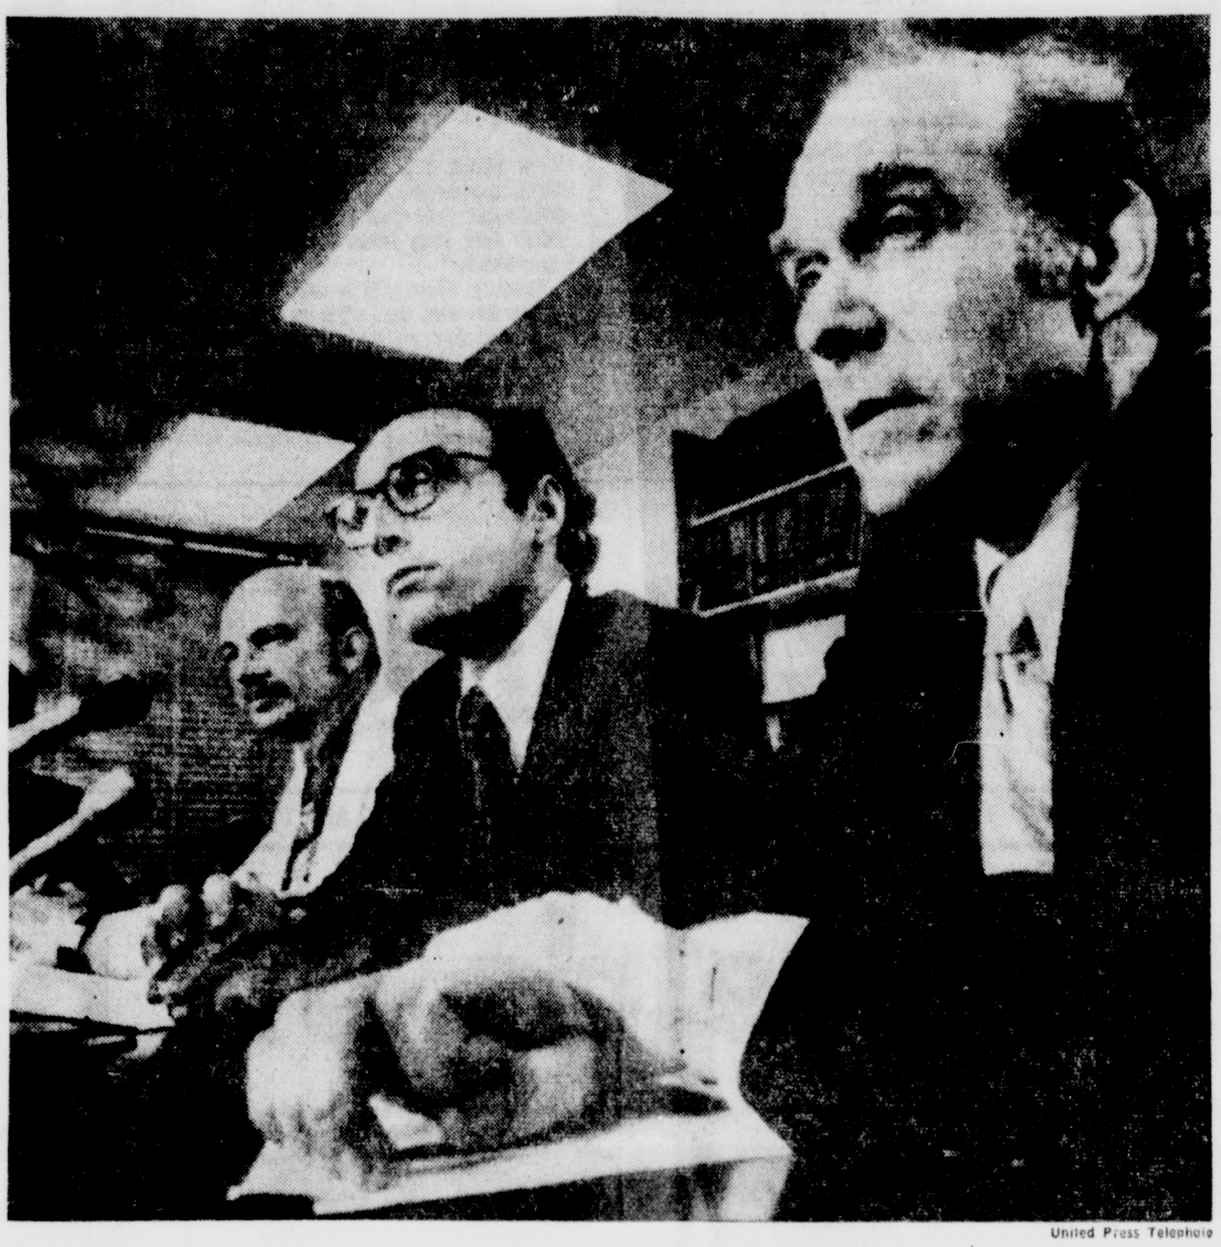
Ramon Serrata, 46, an IBM engineer, was arrested at the San Jose plant. He was charged with conspiracy, trade secret theft, accepting an inducement and receiving stolen property.

Others arrested on similar charges were Adolf Jarmann, 52, an employe of K and K Manufacturing; Phillip J. Steckel, 55, a former IBM employe; Phillip Krohzer, 39, vice president of K and K, David H. Bunch, 42, and Brunhilda Macneven, draftsmen, and Thomas A. Finnegan, 27.

A warrant was issued for Wesley G. Powers, 50, president of the now defunct Memory Magnetics International Co., of Torrance. He is believed to be in Europe and was described by police as an associate of Steckel and Jarmann.

Also sought is Wolfgang Arnold, 41, said to be the major stockholder of Computer Disc Mastertape, a firm which succeeded Memory Magnetics International and occupies the same plant.

Watergate prosecutors resign jobs



United Press Telephoto

Cox relieves three men from assignment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox Friday relieved from duty the three-man team of federal attorneys who have handled the complex case for the past year.

Cox said he was acting at the request of the three young assistant U.S. attorneys —Earl J. Silbert, Seymour Glanzer and Donald Campbell —who have come under increasing criticism lately for their conduct of the case. The Senate Watergate committee is investigating whether they were as thorough as they could have been in exposing the scandal.

He said that their work would be conducted by James F. Neal, a 43-year-old attorney from Nashville, Tenn., who joined Cox's staff working with the three at the end of May.

The three attorneys, who are on the staff of Harold H. Titus Jr., U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia, have been in charge of the Watergate prosecution from the beginning.

However, when Cox took over the special prosecutor's post in May they offered to resign. Cox considered accepting their resignations at that time, but finally asked them to remain until he could get his own independent investigation under way.

In an exchange of letters, both dated Friday, the three said they wanted to quit and Cox accepted their resignation.

"Your help has been invaluable," Cox told them, "without it we would be weeks behind. Even now, the loss of your assistance may slow us down somewhat but not enough to justify my overruling your own wishes.

"Perhaps I may add in closing that I realized this has not been an easy time for you. I am aware of various criticisms of your earlier conduct of the investigation in prosecution of seven defendents.

"Lawyers often differ on questions of judgment and there are points in which my judgment might have varied from yours. Thus, in the investigation, however, none of us have seen anything to show that you did not pursue your professional duties according to your honest judgment and in complete good faith."

Cox was referring to frequent criticism of the three prosecutors for failing to prosecute the trial of the Watergate Seven vigorously enough. The three kept the scope of the trial narrow, causing U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica frequently to ask pointed questions to "get to the bottom of this case."

In their five-page letter to Cox, the three said, "We realize that our departure from the case may cause speculation by some that it is attributable to criticism of our investigation and prosecution.

"Such speculation is wholly unwarranted. Furthermore, we emphatically reject any allegations of impropriety or lack of diligence which have been or might be made. At the very minimum we plan to submit a written response to any such criticism."

The three men said that they were aware that they might be needed as witnesses during future Watergate trials and they were prepared to testify. A spokesman for Cox said it was unlikely, however, that the three fould be called before the special Senate Watergate committee currently holding televised hearings. The three met with Cox briefly Friday afternoon before the text of the letters was released.

Reagan eyes trimming in state budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan and his staff Friday hastily reviewed — with an eye towards trimming —the record $9.46 billion proposed state budget sent to his 13 days late.

Ed Gray, press secretary to the governor, said Reagan would sign the state's spending program for the next fiscal year Saturday, only one day before it is supposed to take effect.

Reagan's top advisers huddled throughout the day Friday, going over the budget item by item, Gray said.

The legislature sent the spending proposal, the largest of any state in the nation, to Reagan Thursday. Aides said review of the budget began even before it was officially approved.

The budget is $160 million more than requested by Reagan.

It contains the largest state school aid increase in history, generous salary raises for state employes, $1.3 million for a governor's mansion and $89.3 million for park acquisition.

The proposed budget is about $1.7 billion more than the current $7.7 billion spending proposal.

Bradley set to take up job with new staffers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mayor-elect Tom Bradley Friday appointed a longtime political aide and a former antipoverty offical as deputy mayors in his administration which begin officially Sunday.

He also named four executive assistants and appointed former radio newsman Robert Kholos, 29, as his news secretary.

Appointed deputy mayors were Maurice Weiner, 42, his senior deputy at City Hall and a member of his staff since 1965, and Manuel Aragon Jr., 41, former executive director of the Economic and Youth Opportunities Agency and currently an investment executive.

Bradley said Weiner also will be the chief of staff with the title of chief executive assistant.

Appointed executive assistants to the mayor were Mrs. Wanda Moore, 35, in charge of personnel matters and office management; Anton Calleia, 39, administrative procedures and city legislative liaison; Norman Emerson, 25, director of research, and Masamori Kojima 50, departmental liaison.

The seven appointments by Bradley, who will be the first black mayor of Los Angeles, cut across racial lines. Aragon is Mexican-American, Mrs. Moore is black, Kojima is Oriental and the others are caucasians.

Except for Aragon, all the appointees were actively employed in Bradley's City Council office or in his campaign organization. Aragon served on the campaign executive committee but was not a fulltime employe.

The mayor-elect said more staff members will be named later but he did not anticpate having as large a staff as outgoing Mayor Sam Yorty.

Mountain stream shut off by contamination

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) A mountain stream rushing through Indian-owned Tacquitz Canyon revealed high human contamination Friday as four more campers joined the list of persons infected this week by a form of dysentery.

The big, boulder-strewn canyon just west of the city was put under strict quarantine by the Riverside County Health Department and mounted patrols began warning away campers late Thursday night.

Among more than two dozen persons ordered out of Tacquitz Canyon, three young men and a teen-age girl who each drank from the stream were later treated at Desert Hospital.

Environmental Health Director Don Bolling said that somewhere below Tacquitz Falls, the swift canyon stream showed "extremely high contamination" from human excrement.

The canyon, owned by the Agua Caliente Indian tribe, is popular among hikers and young campers.

Bolling said emergency water samples were taken Tuesday after 11 Marines, on furlough from Twenty Nine Palms, returned to base with severe cases of diarrhea. Five of them were hospitalized.

Health officals said tests showed the water contained a Shigella infection and a high coliform bacteria count.

Bolling said that before lab tests could be analyzed Thursday, another half dozen campers, including a Palm Springs family, had swallowed the contaminated stream water and were treated at local hospitals for bacteria infections.

Fallout of China H-blast watched

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — More than a hundred air sampling stations in the western United States have been activated to measure possible radioactive fallout from the recent atmospheric detonation of a hydrogen bomb in China, it was announced Friday.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said other than the 49 air sampling station which operate daily on a routine basis that 68 additional air sampling stations were activated Friday. A total of 21 western states are involved in the survillance.

Data gathered at all of the 117 stations will be analyzed at the EPA national environmental reserach center in Las Vegas. The center here operates for the Atomic Energy Commission in connection with the underground nuclear testing program at the nearby Nevada Test Site.

Dr. Delbert Barth, director of the research center said the air sampling stations were part of the center's entire monitoring program. He said surveillance began Friday morning on a stepped up basis and would continue for at least a week or until radioactivity above normal background could no longer be detected.

No radiation from the Chinese nuclear blast has been recorded thus far, according to a spokesman at the research center. But fallout from the test would not be expected to reach the western United States until possibly early next week.

China announced this week it exploded the hydrogen bomb in the atmosphere on Wednesday. U.S. defense analysts estimated the yield was in the range of one to three megatons. A megaton is equivalent to a million tons of TNT.

The atomic bombs dropped on Japan during World War II were the equivalent of 20,000 tons of TNT.

The states which particpate in the air radiation surveillance network include Washington, Oregon, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Nevada, California, Arizona, Utah, Colorado, South Dakota, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa Minnesota, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arkansas and Louisiana.

The air monitoring stations primarily are operated by the use of filters which collect particles from the air and charcoal cartridges which collect gases. The filters and cartriges are mailed to the research center here for analysis.

It looks like we haven't learned anything from history. The American people are being brainwashed into believing that the Communists are nice, friendly, God-fearing, church going people.
Ask the people of Hungary and Czeckoslovakia if one can trust the Communists.
Remember the words of Mr. Khrushchev to the United States, "We will bury you." Our leaders are busy disarming us and sending them the shovels to dig the hole.
I thank God for our freedom of worship and freedom of election and freedom of private ownership of property. I want America to continue as a free, independent nation, but it looks like our leaders are selling us out. May the American people wake up before it is too late.

Sprenger said he set a goal for 100 new members during the year. The membership is now 470.

"We also intend to stimulate as much commercial and retail business as possible" he added. "I want to spend some time with the Euclid Avenue Merchants Association to get their thinking."

New chamber officers were installed during the chamber's annual banquet at the Red Hill Country Club.

Other officers are Ralph Bush, Kaiser Steel Corp., first vie president; Lewis Liesch, attorney, second vice president; and Thomas Maginn, General Electric Co., outgoing president, treasurer.

Fire danger forces parts of nearby forest to close

The hot, dry weather will cause high fire-hazard areas of the Angeles National Forest to be closed effective Sunday.

These include watershed areas adjacent to such foothill communities of Glendora, San Dimas, La Verne, Claremont, Upland and Ontario.

"The closure will remain in effect until the fall and winter rains reduce the possibility of fire occurring in these watershed areas," said William T. Dresser, forest supervisor.

The fire closure is done annually to help reduce man-caused wildfires that could destroy the valuable watersheds, he added.

"In order to allow the public to enjoy outdoor recreation opportunities, the area under blanket closure will be open to entry by written permits during low fire hazard periods on a day-to-day basis," said Dresser.

These restrictions will be imposed for all of the national forest for the fire season:

—Smoking is permitted in places of habitation, inside vehicles on public paved roads and at paved areas.

—Smoking is prohibited while traveling on foot, on domesticated animal or vehicle when off the road in grass, brush, timber or other flammable vegetative cover or in areas posted against smoking.

—Campfire permits are required at campgrounds not accessible by roads. and at all back country and trail camps.

—Trail bikes, chainsaws, generators and other internal combustion engine devices except automobiles, must be equipped with a spark arrestor of a design previously approved by the U.S. Forest Service.

—The possession and discharge of fireworks, tracer or incendiary ammunition within the forest boundaries is prohibited.

—Children should be carefully supervised in the use of matches.

—Use only those areas safe for target shooting.

Information regarding fire permits can be obtained by calling the Mt. Baldy station, Glendora, 335-1251.

Claremont fire leaves five families homeless

CLAREMONT — Occupants of five condominium type apartment units were looking for temporary homes after a $125,000 fire Friday damaged or destroyed their dwellings in an apartment complex at 226 S. Marywood Ave.

Firemen said the blaze which broke out shortly before 1:30 a.m. destoryed the apartments occupied by Jay Jensen, owner of Jay's Top Shop in Pomona, and his 8-year-old son, and by Jasper N. Myers, a sales manager for Norris Industries in Walnut, and his family.

Damaged but not destroyed were the homes occupied by the families of Dr. Robert Soroskey, George Szydlo, and Ray Stalians. All of them were leasing the homes from others.

The condominium units were the luxury type,with three bedroom dwelling renting for $275 or more.

Firemen said the blaze started in the wiring of an air-conditioning unit located above Jensen's garage. It quickly spread to Szydlo's adjoining garage and to the home of the Myers on the other side.

Three expensive late model cars in the two garages were demolished. Jensen said the only item that remained intact was a bowling ball in the trunk of his automobile.

He said that although the structure itself was insured, he had no insurance on the contents which he estimated at several thousand dollars in value.

Firemen said that by the time they were called to the scene, all of the residents in the complex were out of their homes. Many of them were wearing their night clothes.

Jensen said he was awakened by the "pop-pop noise of crackling fire and the pungent smell of smoke."

He said he quickly got his clothes on, went to the other bedroom where his son was asleep, grabbed him and carried him out to safety.

Mrs. Myers said she was awakened by the "crackling sound" of the fire as it spread along the overhang of her house to her garage.

"We wasted no time getting out," she said.

The fire was brought under control by daylight but it took eight hours to put out the embers.

Claremont proposal

Apartment developer asking impact waiver

CLAREMONT — A request for an emption from an environmental imct report has been filed by H. B. W. nterprises of Newport Beach for a oposed 20-unit apartment development the southwest corner of Seventh Street d Yale Avenue in the Historical Claeont District.

The Planning Commission will consider matter next Tuesday night under a quest for a conditional use permit to ow the development on a 45,000-quare-foot lot.

The two-story apartments will be of ıcco, with all wood rough sawed, and ission tile.

In January this year, Howad B. Weiner covered the feelings of the neighbors ing on Seventh Street when he sought hematic approval of the project before e Architectural Commission.

At that time Ray Fowler, 272 W. Seventh St., said that he would be backing out of his driveway into the on-coming traffic and suggested the inappropriateness of 20 units on one piece of property.

Acting Chairman Yoram Makow summed up the commission's feelings at the time by saying that "this area has a special character that we want to keep."

Alton Sanford of Griswold's has filed a request for an exemption to an environmental impact report for a remote control drive-up bank teller station adjacent to the large Griswold's Old School House sign on the northwest corner of Indian Hill and Foothill boulevards.

The teller station will be linked to the proposed United California Bank minibranch in the building fomerly occupied by Camp Fire Girls.

Help on how to secure home for vacation

New anti-burglary plan in Ontario

ONTARIO — Calling police home surillance for residents on vacation "totaineffective" in preventing burglaries, ntario's acting Police Chief L. M. Kolek, has announced a new home burglaprevention program.

Kolbrek said the "previous methods of omising residents that the police dertment will watch their homes while ey are on vacation was totally ineffecve as a burglary prevention program."

He said a new program, designed to form residents on how to properly sere their homes before they leave on cation, will be implemented in the city ginning Sunday.

He said under the new program, Onrio residents planning a vacation are ged to call the police department at 6-6711 at least one week before they ve on vacation. Residents will be advised where and how they can receive special burglary prevention information which gives specific tips and techniques for preparing homes for vacations.

In addition, the person's name and address, dates of vacation and the name and address of a person who has access to the home will be recorded and filed at the police department in case of emergency at the residence.

Explaining why the previous vacation check program was ineffective Kolbrek said, "During the summer months when most people take vacations, our officers are so deluged with other requests for police service, they very seldom find the time to make the once-a-day checks of vacationers' residences.

"Even if they could check each residence at least once a day, the probability of discovering a burglary in progress is so small as to be insignificant," he said.

Kolbrek said the only way a vacation house check could deter a burglary would be if the first house check discovers an unsecured premise. "In the past, however, officers have discovered numerous open and unlocked doors and windows which they were unable to properly secure without the presence of the resident.

"It almost appears that our previous procedure lulls persons into a false sense of security—they feel that since the police are watching their homes they don't have to worry about locking the doors and windows," Kolbrek remarked.

Kolbrek said the new program is intended to make the public conscious of the fact that the best possible security for a vacant residence is not special police checks, but a securely locked home, and a 'trusted neighbor who can watch the residence and call the police if some suspicious persons or activities are seen."

Other recommendations that will be made under the new program include:

—Discontinuing milk, mail and other deliveries ahead of time

—Arranging for lawn care and removal of advertising circulars.

—Having the telephone temporarily disconnected. (Burglars may try calling to find out if anyone is in.)

—Leaving a key with a neighbor so they may periodically inspect your home.

—Connecting a light and a radio to an automatic timer.

—Not publicizing plans. (Some burglars specialize in reading newspaper accounts of other people's vacation activities.)

IMAGINATIVE GARBAGE MAN—Ray Valine, known for wearing costumes on his Sacramento garbage route, calls attention to the upcoming Independence Day holiday with this ensemble.

Unless help arrives soon . . .

Tragedy looms in drought-stricken Africa

ROME (UPI) — Experts differ on how many millions of people face starvation in a drought-stricken belt of countries bordering the Sahara, but they agree on one thing—unless large-scale help arrives soon it will be one of Africa's great tragedies.

The six-year drought has plagued the six former French colonies that make up the Sahel, an arid belt stretching 2,500 miles south of the vast desert in northwest Africa.

"Out of a total population of 25 million, it is estimated that about five or six million are now in a state of indigence never experienced before and many risk starving to death," Dr. Vikram Shah, an official of the U.N Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) said in a Vatican radio interview Thursday.

Oumarou Youssoufou, Niger's U.N. ambassador, said in a New York television interview the figure was outdated. Niger is one of the stricken countries.

"Two months ago, the FAO said six million people are facing starvation," he said. "Today, we are talking of 10 million people, at least."

Niger, along with Senegal, Mali, Mauritania, Upper Volta and Chad—among the world's poorest countries—have had insufficient rainfall for six years and the drought is now approaching disaster proportions despite reports of some rain beginning to fall in the Upper Volta and Niger region.

Vikram Shah acknowledged the difficulty of assessing the number of persons facing possible death.

"Their number is hard to determine with certainty because most of these people either live in remote areas or are nomads," he said.

"Besides, the effects of famine can be calculated only after some time, because the number of persons dying of starvation cannot be as easily determined as that of victims of a natural calamity such as an earthquake.

"Thousands of persons have left their homes in quest of food and water," he said. "Entire villages have been abandoned or left to those who cannot travel long distances, such as the aged, children and the sick.

Sacramento trash collector dresses for the occasion

By DONALD THORNTON

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The week before Christmas, Ray Valine, a debonaire Sacramento garbageman, collected trash along his route in a Santa Claus suit.

The week before Easter he wore an ear-flopping rabbit costume and passed out candy to hundreds of children from an Easter basket.

Thursday he trimmed his beard, donned a foot-high top hat and passed out July 4th balloons to the delight of hundreds of youngsters along his collection route.

"Don't I look better than that old man sitting there with that vicious finger sticking out," Valine said between handing out balloons and hoisting garbage into the back of his large white truck.

Valine, 26, a county trashman for three years, also painted his large collection barrel with the colors of the flag and decorated his truck with balloons and posters as part of his Independence Day antics.

"First he was Santa Claus, then the Easter bunny, and now Uncle Sam," said one young housewife along Valines route. "He's one wierd garbageman."

Valine, somewhat a folk hero to the children on his route, admits his fellow garbagemen consider him "eccentric," but his customers love it, especially the children.

"I have all types of people say they like what I'm doing; that there should be more people in the world with free balloons," Valine said. "I figure myself as a public relations man for the entire garbage world."

Valine received so much publicity on his Santa and bunny ventures that he is now featured on a poster pushing trash recycling manufactured by a local firm.

"I'm advocating recycling," the young garbageman said. Then, pushing his palm into the center of his back, he added: "I see thousands of tons of garbage every day."

Valine, his long hair braided down his back, was asked what holiday he would honor next, and he said this was his last in Sacramento.

"I'm moving to San Diego to be nearer my 5-year-old daughter, Madelyn," said the goateed Valine.

What are his future plans? "I know I can get a job as a garbageman there (San Diego) ... but maybe I'll sell fly spray instead," he said.

Female phoney love affair

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

The world will little note nor long remember what is written here, but for the benefit of archeologists and historians of the future I would like to record that the American woman of the 20th Century had a love affair with the telephone.

Ever since that long-ago day (March 10, 1876) when Alexander Graham Bell, (played by Don Ameche), first uttered those immportal words, "Mr. Watson, come here — I want you" to his astonished assistant (Mr. Watson) over the first telephone, the Miss, Mrs. and Ms. of the nation have taken the odd-shaped speaking tube to their bosoms and today monopolize this country's 75 million telephones.

(History records that Bell, preparing the first test on his invention, inadvertently spilled battery acid on his clothes, and the first words that were probably not that stately statement but a string of epithets unprintable in a family newspaper. However.)

The male sex, if that's what it is, uses the telephone as a simple tool of communication, the quickest way to transmit the important messages of the day — buy a thousand shares of AT&T, order two gross of framsprockets, cancel the evening's rendezvous with Fifi LaTour (wife returned home unexpectedly), reserve a handball court, and so on.

Women look upon the telephone as an intimate friend, a counselor, guide, confidant, an instrument for picking up the latest gossip, keeping up on family and friends, telling Betsy about the Brandons' fight last night, and just plain talking.

This romance between American women and American Tel & Tel begins at an early age. Some of today's toddlers have spoken their first words into a telephone. At an early age, little boys are as prone to finger the dial (usually ending up with Nome, Alaska, or Brisbane, Australia, to Dad's consternation) but as time passes, the boy's interest in the telephone wanes, while his sister's grows to a consuming passion. I've known kids who learned to count by using the telephone dial.

From the age of 10 onward, the female of the species lives on the telephone, gurgling endlessly about playday to their elementary school chums, running on, a few years later, about the math quizz and what they are going to wear to the sock-hop and what did that divine Tim Edwards see in Betsy Jordan. As college girls they call boyfriends half-way across the nation and coo for 45 minutes; they call Dad (collect) and ask him to send some extra money this month.

On into young matron-age, their 30's, middle age and to eternity, this adoration of the telephone dominates the hearts and time of the women. It is their umbilical cord to the world, and many gals would rather talk to a friend on the telephone than to meet him in person. Girls will chat happily to obscene phone callers, just to be talking. Some women yak with recordings telling them to check their directories and dial again. Men trying to "call home" get the busy signal so often they're convinced someone has left the phone off the hook.

Thoughts

From the Living Bible

Show respect for everyone. Love Christians everywhere. Fear God and honor the government. Servants, you must respect your masters—not only if they are kind and reasonable, but even if they are tough and cruel. Praise the Lord if you are punished for doing right! Of course, you get no credit for being patient if you are beaten for doing wrong; but if you do right and suffer for it, and are patient beneath the blows, God is well pleased. This suffering is all part of the work God has given you.

(I Peter 2:17-21)

California misisons

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Franciscan missionaries of the Roman Cathoiic Church established 21 missions in California from 1769 to 1823. Father Junipero Serra founded nine of them prior to his death in 1784.

Bill Henke will be the worship leader. A large number of the members of the congregation are in Fresno attending the international conference of the Church of the Brethren. Chino mobile home destroyed by blaze

CHINO — Firemen Friday were attempting to determine the cause of a fire Thursday evening that destroyed a 10 x 50-foot mobile home parked at 9310 Edison Ave. here.

Firemen said the fire was reported by Michael Fromme, the owner, about 6:55 p.m. Thursday. When three fire units arrived at the location the mobile home was totally engulfed in flames and the living room roof had collapsed. Firemen managed to bring the fire under control in several minutes, but not before it had been totally consumed by the flames. Firemen would not estimate the mobile home's value.

The mobile home parked at the side of Fromme's residence was occupied by Rito R. Esquibel. Esquibel managed to leave the burning home without injury. Firemen said that Esquibel who speaks little English, was unable to tell them what may have caused the fire.

Truck driver loses $800 to 3 robbers

ONTARIO — Police are searching for three men who robbed a 29-year-old Washington truck driver of $800 Wednesday night at the Union 76 Truck Stop at the San Bernardino Freeway and Milliken Avenue.

The truck driver, William Gary Baskett told police that a man opened the door of his truck cab about 7:55 p.m. and told him that something was wrong with his truck's trailer. Baskett said he went to the rear of the trailer with the man, when he was grabbed by a second man and a knife jabbed in his side. The two men took the money from his wallet and ran, Baskett said.

The truck driver said he gave chase, but they got away when they jumped into a green Pontiac with a third man.

The three men were all described as Negroes, one 16, one about 45, and the third unknown. Police said one of the men was wearing a checked shirt, had a thin moustache and a big nose.

Hosts are needed for Mexico guests

CLAREMONT — Host families, preferably those with school age children, are needed for a group of about 15 students from Guanajuato, Mexico, expected about July 15 for a two-week stay.

The annual exchange visit is sponsored by the Sister City Association of Claremont. In alternate summers Claremont sends a group to Guanajuato.

The program is all part of the People-to-People project established during the Eisenhower administration in the interests of promoting international understanding.

Guanajuato, like Claremont, is a university city, but about 300 years older. The youth of both cities are remarkably alike, their parents have discovered.

Though speaking different languages, they somehow have a common language. The Mexicans want to perfect their English so it is not essential that host families speak Spanish.

Activities such trips to Disneyland, the beach, and Universal City, shopping tours, get-togethers and receptions will be coordinated by co-chairmen Mrs. Marie Ohman of 4510 Rhodelia Ave. (626-8228), and Mrs. Louise Finley of 695 Delaware Drive (629-4254).

Host families and other interested persons will be invited to a briefing and organizational meeting in advance of the visit. Either chairman will be happy to answer questions.

Films may run until ruled as obscene--court

DALLAS (UPI) — A federal district judge ruled Thursday the Supreme Court's latest ruling on obscenity does not give district attorneys a license to close movie theaters that may be showing obscene movies.

U.S. District Judge William M. Taylor, Jr. said the movies must be ruled obscene by a court before their showing can be stopped.

Many call for President to come forward and answer charges

Newspapers react to Nixon 'political enemies' list

By United Press International

A number of newspapers said editorially Thursday and today that they were shocked to learn of the White House "political enemies" list. Many said it was high time that President Nixon step forward and answer questions brought up during the Senate Watergate hearings.

One newspaper, however, said testimony by John W. Dean III that the White House ordered an FBI investigation of CBS newsman Daniel Schorr was "far from suprising."

"However remote a punitive White House move against a newsman may have seemed in 1971 to the public, in view of recent revelations, it seems more like a routine type of operation," said an editorial in the Rutland, Vt., Daily Herald.

The Chicago Sun-Times and the New York Daily News called for Nixon to give a public answer quickly to Dean's charges.

"The accusation that President Nixon was involved in a criminal effort to obstruct justice in the Watergate case...can only be anwered by the President himself," the Sun-Times said. "It is urgent that he respond to Dean's charges, and that in so doing he make more than a mere television statement."

The Daily News said that Nixon has the right to keep quiet, "but this is hardly the occasion to stand on the niceties of due process . . ."

"Like it or not, this case has been thrown into the court of public opinon, and style of lying."

Mr. Nixon owes a full, frank accounting to that tribunal," the News said.

Both the Washington Star-News and Salt Lake City's Deseret News cautioned the public not to jump to conclusions on the basis of Dean's testimony.

"Can John Dean be believed?" asked the Star-News. "By his own account he is capable of a championship

The Deseret News said there were holes in Dean's testimony.

"On Monday, for example, Dean maintained that in March the President ordered a coverup of the Watergate scandal but didn't seem to know what he was doing. On Tuesday, Dean testified that Mr. Nixon not only knew about the cover-up but knew about it as early as last fall," the News said.

The Miami Herald said, "The Watergate drama has produced no more disgusting act in the process of undermining democracy than these virtual lettres de cachet, a device of the Bourbon kings whose reigns it appears, have come alive again in the White House."

The Washington Post said, "Three times now Mr. Nixon has addressed the public on what he is pleased to call the 'deplorable' Watergate 'incident.' It is not an incident; it is a way of life we are learning about."

The New York Times said after learning from Dean's testimony that the Internal Revenue Service was asked to make punitive use of income tax audits, "every citizen can get a little taste of the atmosphere of a secret-police state."

The Times called for a separate investigation of the IRS and a review of existing tax laws.

Fervor of tiny church is undimmed despite poison deaths; snakes still part of rites

NEWPORT, Tenn. (UPI) — The Rev. Liston Pack, pastor of the Holiness Church of God in Jesus Name, says there will be snake handling at the convention Sunday "if the Lord is willing."

Pack expects about 400 persons from across the Southeast at his little Carson Springs church in a mountain cove near Newport for what is billed as a national convention of his sect.

"There will be singing, preaching and shouting," Pack said, "and we will also handle snakes and fire if the Lord is willing."

Pack said he had some new snakes ready for the meeting should the demand for them arise. Among them is a huge cottonmouth which stirred interest recently among persons attending a snake-handling cult meeting in West Virginia.

"He's a big one," Pack said, adding that a lot of visitors were looking forward to handling the deadly snake.

Pack's church drew international attention in April when two of its members died of strychnine poisoning after drinking the poison during a Saturday night prayer service.

"Lord, I hope they don't get started up again," said Cocke County Sheriff Bobby Stinson. "It was worse than World War II around here in April. It was the only thing anybody around here talked about."

Stinson said he had no plans for policng the convention.

"I'll just let them have their meeting and hope nobody gets hurt," said the sheriff.

Stinson said a temporary injunction still was in effect against snake handling at the little church, a converted hunting cabin tucked back in a quiet hollow under English Mountain on a dead-end road.

But most residents are reluctant to push the issue because they feel each individual has a right to his own religious practices

DON'T BE SO MODEST!

Brag a little...

You can't afford to be modest. After all, you're in business to sell. You have to tell buyers what you have to offer, why it pays them to do business with you, why you and your service and prices and products and sales policies are best.

The most economically effective way you can brag to your prospective customers is with a display advertisement in the Progress Bulletin.

Ex-Dodger Darwin dumps Angels

Eighth-inning grand slam gives Twins 4-0 win

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

ANAHEIM—The Dodgers have been accused of contributing too much to the Angels' rise to prominence. But it was a player involved in a minor trade two years ago that was responsible for the Halos' demise Friday night at Anaheim Stadium.

Bobby Darwin, a spring sensation with the Dodgers in 1971, ripped a bases loaded home run off Nolan Ryan in the eighth inning to give the Minnesota Twins a 4-0 win.

Darwin was delt to the Twins in exchange for Paul Ray Powell, an outfielder who still is playing for the Dodger farm club in Albuquerque.

At the time the deal was made, Walter Alston was quoted as saying, "He's got some thunder in his bat," in reference to the 6-2, 200-pound pitcher-turned outfielder.

Alston's words have been confirmed. Last year, his first with Minnesota, Bobby hit 22 homers and batted in 80 runs while compiling a .267 average. So far this year he has 50 runs batted and 11 home runs.

The ex-Dodger also is an ex-Angel. "I bounced around for eight years as a pitcher," he remarked as writers crowded around him and ignored winning pitcher Bert Blyleven. "I hurt my arm so bad pitching in 1963 that I couldn't even throw the ball 20 feet."

When informed he wasn't supposed to hit home runs off of Ryan, Darwin grinned and said, "I guess I was just lucky. Third base catch Ralph Rowe told me, 'Don't look for any signs, just go up there and hit the ball.'"

Darwin did just that. He is half way to his admitted goal of 100 runs batted in.

It was a galling loss for Ryan (9-9) who struck out 12. That marked the ninth time this year the slender fire-baller has fanned 10 or more in a single game. It's the 40th time in his career and 26th as an Angel. He now has 176 Ks for the season.

Ryan also walked six. His fifth walk to open the Twins' eighth was the one that got him in trouble. It marked the fourth time he had walked a Minnesota lead-off batter.

Jim Holt then layed down a hard bunt that Mike Epstein overran, and there were two on. Ryan fanned Rod Carew and got Jerry Terrell to force Holt at second. Dangerous Tony Oliva drew Ryan's sixth base on balls to load the bases. That brought up Darwin, and he hit Ryan's first offering a mile over the centerfield fence.

Blyleven, (9-9), the league's third-leading strike out pitcher, fanned only two. He didn't strike out anyone until Richie Scheinblum became victim No. 1 in the seventh. No. 2 was pinch-hitter Bill Grabarkewitz in the eighth.

But he walked only one and retired the first 13 Angels in order. The game was so dominated by the pitchers that only 13 balls were hit out of the infield in the first six innings.

The Angels threatened only once. They loaded the bases with two outs in the eighth on two hits and Blyleven's only base on balls. But Al Gallagher grounded out to end the inning.

ANGEL NOTES: The Angel players' wives play the KMPC disc jockeys tonight at 6 p.m. The regular game follows at 7 p.m.

The Halos will send rookie Andy Hassler (0-1) against Joe Decker (2-2). Sunday's pitchers will be Bill Singer (12-3) and lefthander Jim Kaat (8-6) in a 6 p.m. game.

Sunday's proceedings are billed as a "tripleheader" with the final game of the seven-game U.S.-Japanese Collegiate All-Stars kicking off the activities at 2 p.m.

A fireworks show is scheduled to follow the Angels-Twins game.

Pitcher Rudy May remains in St. Joseph's Hospital in Orange. Ten pounds of weight have been added to the traction apparatus and he is undergoing therapy. May is scheduled to be released Sunday or Monday and might join the club in Oakland.

Catcher Jeff Torborg tied a club record, formerly held by Bob Rodgers, when he threw out three runners attempting to steal in the game. The opposition has successfully stolen 41 times against the Angels. Halo catchers have thrown out only 19. The Angels have stolen successfully 33 times and have been thrown out 26 times.

Reliever Dave Sells has seen a hard specialist, Dr. Rowland Stark, the doctor who worked with Andy Messersmith's problem last year. Messersmith had a torn tendon sheath.

SECRETARIAT PREPARES FOR CHALLENGE

Secretariat breezes through workout Friday in preparation for today's $125,000 Arlington Invitational race. Secretariat, the first horse to win the triple crown in 25 years, will be out to break its third record of the year. The exercise boy is George Davis.

Secretariat to try track mark at Arlington

CHICAGO (UPI) — Secretariat, with two track records to his credit this year and another pending, goes after still another mark Saturday when he runs in the $125,000 Invitational at Arlington Park.

The chestnut 3-year-old, Horse of the Year as a juvenile, ninth winner of the Triple Crown and the first to earn that trophy in 25 years, will oppose three rivals in the mile and one-eighth special event which will pay the winner $75,000.

His chances were rated good to eclipse the record 1:46 4-5 set Aug. 5, 1967, by Damascus, a 3-year-old under 126 pounds. Secretariat also will carry 126 pounds.

"He'll run all he can run," trainer Lucien Laurin said of his record chances. "I'm not out here just to gallop, win, lose or draw. There's never such a thing as a cinch in a race."

The weather forecast was for a fast track with no rain and a temperature in the 70s. Secretariat worked out on the track Friday morning, galloping a mile and a quarter with no clock, and Laurin said, "It's a fine track." He added the surface made no difference to the horse since "he can run on a cornfield."

All three opponents will carry 120 pounds: Our Native, Tony Rini up, from the inside post position; Blue Chip Dan with Leslie Ahrens aboard, from the No 2 spot; and My Gallant from No. 3 with Craig Perret riding.

Secretariat will have his usual jockey, Ron Turcotte, from the outside. Turcotte was to arrive Friday night.

Laurin said he was "disappointed" that Linda's Chief, owned by Neil Hellman, would not be in the field since he thought Secretariat would "run faster if he had that kind of speed in."

Linda's Chief, often classed the second best 3-year-old, had been expected to run, but Hellman wanted a mile and 1-16 race and refused to compete at 1⅛.

Laurin objected to the shorter distance because "I'm training the horse up and I didn't want to take him back." Besides, he said, Sham, runner-up in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness and last in the Belmont was "the second best horse."

Betting on the race will be Secretariat against the field with the other three horses grouped for the mutuels. All three also galloped Friday morning. There will be win betting only on the race.

Secretariat set track records at Churchill Downs in the Derby and at Belmont in the Belmont Stakes, and there will be a hearing next month to determine whether he set a Pimlico mark in winning the Preakness.

The official electric timer had him short of Canonero's record in the Preakness, but unofficial clocks gave him record speed and there was reason to believe the official timer started early.

"I thought he broke it," Laurin said.

He said Secretariat's next start would be at Saratoga and added, "You can bet your sweet life" he will run against older horses before he is retired to stud in November under terms of the agreement in which he was syndicated for more than $6 million.

Secretariat was the 1 to 20 odds on favorite in the early line for Saturday's race and statistically there was reason to hold that line.

He has won 12 of 15 career starts and earned $895,242 while Our Native has won 12 of 27 and earned $316,744. My Gallant, third in the Belmont where Secretariat romped home by 31 lengths, has five wins in 15 starts for $113,520, and Blue Chip Dan has won two of 20 and earned $31,350.

Officials anticipated the attendance would surpass the record 50,638 set July 4, 1941, with the infield opened for standing room. There was a good chance also the mutuels would exceed $3 million for the first time in Arlington history.

Betting windows for the invitational were open all day Friday.

The race will be televised nationally with post time scheduled at 5:18 p.m. CDT.

East has Gun(n)s in R&R at QB

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

AZUSA — Ken Gunn would like to impress one point on all concerned even before practice for the East-West All-Star Game gets under way Thursday.

Robbie Hertel is assured of the quarterback slot on the East squad.

And so is Ron Himes.

"There is just no way we're going to have those guys competing," Gunn says of the pair of prep superstars. "I'm not going to split the squad with some thinking Ron is better, and others Robbie."

Gunn has at his disposal two of the better arms and football minds in Southern California and they're going to get equal treatment as far as the All-Star game is concerned.

Himes played under Gunn at Walnut, where he quarterbacked the Mustangs to a Hacienda League title and a first round CIF victory. His lifetime passing statistics are surpassed only by former Bishop Amat QB Pat Haden.

Hertel, meanwhile, successfully guided Los Altos through the four rounds of the playoffs to a CIF 3-A championship.

While other assignments on the team may be up for grabs, Gunn is firm in his conviction that neither Himes nor Hertel gets the impression that the QB job is at stake.

"We may go by series, plays, or minutes," Gunn says, "But there will be a straight split in playing time between them."

As for the question of who will start the game, Gunn thinks Himes will get the nod.

"Just out of superstition, I may let Ron have the first play. He's been starting games the past three years, and we've won most of them."

"These are really two exceptional kids. Any one of the two is capable of moving the ball club at any time."

The presence of Himes on the field half of the time the East has the ball will most likely have the effect of Walnut-type offenses being used. Gunn confirms that, basically, the East will play Walnut football.

"We're going to do more running than at Walnut, though," Gunn interjects. "We're going to run more because we have some fine running backs."

Defensively, Claremont High followers will recognize the thinking of Wolfpack coach Esper Keiser, whose staff is handling the defensive end of the East's game.

Among the receiving corps will be Royal Oak's wide receiver Phil Boyce and its tight end Roger Steinke, who just a few months ago were doing their best to beat out Gunn's Walnut squad for the Hacienda League championship.

Irwin holds three-stroke lead in Western Open

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hale Irwin, only once a winner in six years on the pro golf tour, scored one of his three best rounds of the year Friday to take a two-stroke lead at the midway point of the $175,000 Western Open with a nine-under-par 133.

Irwin's round, a 66, equalled his best previous performance at Hawaii and Memphis and came as his major challengers were falling back. Arnold Palmer had a par 71 to slip four strokes behind and Billy Casper took a 69 to trail by three.

Only Bruce Crampton, the leading money winner this year, and Rik Massengale, another young charger seeking his first win, stayed close, each with a 69 to share the runnerup spot with 135.

Leonard Thompson, in his second year on the tour, posted the best round of the day, a 64, to break the course record of 65 by Bobby Locke in back-to-back rounds in 1948. Thompson chipped in three times for birdies and had nine birdies and two bogeys for the round.

"I played so terrible Thursday I came out early Friday and practiced a lot," he said. Despite the record his total was 141, eight strokes behind, for a six-way tie for 28th place.

"I played an extremely steady round," said Irwin, 28, who began learning golf from his father at the age of four on sand greens in Kansas. "I only missed one green and two fairways and when I had to pitch the ball, I did it well."

Irwin, who complained of rough greens on the first round, said he eased the problem by hitting his approaches close to the holes.

"If the greens were good, and the course easy," he said, "it was only because I was hitting so many short irons."

Casper held fourth place with 136, and Palmer was tied with Dick Crawford, Bruce Devlin and Tom Kite for fifth with 137. Larry Hinson, Miller Barber, Rocky Thompson, Lionel Hebert and Pat Fitzsimmons had 138.

There were 35 players under par for the 36 holes and 17 even with par 142. Forty-seven were under par for the day compared to 36 on the first round.

Crampton, trying for his fifth tournament win this year, said the 6,654-yard Midlothian course "played shorter today than yesterday," and by comparison said that Friday he was hitting irons two numbers higher than on Thursday.

Ontario advances in Upland Legion Tourney, La Verne takes late lead

UPLAND — At press time Friday night, La Verne Legion scored two runs in the top of the 12th inning to take a 6-4 lead over Upland Legion in the opening night festivities of the 13th Annual Upland Legion Baseball Tournament at Upland Memorial Park.

Upland was denied a game-winning run in the ninth when Mark Bumstead threw out Steve Smith at home plate to send the game into overtime.

Smith led off the frame with a single and tried to scored from first base on Mark Schneekluth's double to left field. Al Acosta retrieved the hit ball and fired to cutoff man Bumstead who fired a strike, nailing Smith at the plate.

La Verne had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the seventh when Greg Thompson doubled home Bumstead who had walked and stolen second.

Upland retaliated in the bottom of the frame when Schneekluth drew a two out walk and scored on third baseman Mark Willman's throwing error.

Brian Ranney started for La Verne and went eight innings allowing four runs, three of them unearned, and only three hits. Jim Vallone picked up in the ninth and got out of a jam on three ground outs after Upland had put runners at second and third with none out.

Ontario trounced West Covina 12-3 in the opening game of the 16-team tourney and will advance to the second round of the championship bracket playing the winer of the La Verne-Ontario game at 8 p.m. tonight at Memorial Park.

In losing, West Covina plays the loser of the La Verne-Ontario bash in a 5:30 p.m. clash at Memorial Park.

In other first round action, Pomona plays Lafayette at 10 a.m. at Memorial with Montclair and El Sabrante immediately following at 12:30 p.m.

CMC star inks with Salt Lake City club

CLAREMONT — Bill Mills, Claremont-Mudd baseball star, has been signed to a contract by Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League.

Mills flew to Pasco, Washington Friday to join the SLC farm team there.

The Claremont native batted .386 for the Stags and was named to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) All-America team.

Russell finally ends marathon after 12 innings

ATLANTA (UPI) — Bill Russell bounced a two-run single up the middle in the 12th inning Friday night to give the Los Angeles Dodgers an 12-9 victory over the Atlanta despite five homers by the Braves including Hank Aaron's 693rd homer.

Russell's single came after Ron Cey doubled with one out and reliever Jim Panther walked Willie Crawford and Lee Lacy to load the bases. Chris Cannizzaro also singled to score Russell with the third run in the inning.

George Culver, 3-4, worked two innings to pick up the victory. The loss was charged to Panther, 1-1.

Los Angeles went ahead 9-8 in the 10th when Willie Davis doubled, moved to third on Cey's fly and scored when Dusty Baker's throw to catcher Johnny Oates skipped away after Ken McMullen flied out. The Braves tied the game 9-9 in the last of the 10th on Dav Johnson's homer. They had tied the game 8-8 in the last of the 10th on Dave Johnson's homer with two out.

The Dodgers broke loose with five straight singles after two were out in the third inning to score their first four runs with Davis driving in two of them. Then, after starter Carl Morton had retired the next 10 men in order, the Dodgers broke loose for four more straight singles in the seventh to turn an 7-4 deficit into an 8-7 lead. Bill Buckner's sacrifice fly capped the four-run inning.

The Braves scored eight of their nine runs on homers.

7,000 tickets sold for Clyde's game

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Rangers sold more than 7,000 tickets Friday for David Clyde's second major league pitching assignment Monday night.

The best ticket day in Rangers history brought to 12,000 the number of tickets sold for that game and came only two days after Clyde's 4-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

But fan appeal like that of the 18-year-old fireballer has not spread to the rest of the team.

Jimmy, Chris, Billie advance at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Jimmy Connors led two other Americans into the last 16 of the men's singles at the Wimbledon tennis championships Friday where top seeded Ilie Nastase loomed larger than life with no sign of the back trouble which had plagued him earlier in the week.

On the distaff side, defending champion Billie Jean King, who is seeking her fifth title, and Chris Evert, the heiress apparent as the queen of the courts, were among six Americans to reach the last 16.

Connors, the fun-loving youngster from Belleville, Ill. and the only American male seed, had the easies passage of Friday's winners when his pace and speed accounted for New Zealander Russell Simspon, 6-2, 6-1,6-2.

Other Americans to advance on the fifth day of the $147,800 tournament, which drew in excess of 31,000 fans on a warm, sunny day, were Alex "Sandy" Mayer, the NCAA champion from Wayne N.J., who scored a 8-6, 7-5, 6-0 win over power serving Czechoslovak Vladimir Zednik, and Bob McKinley of St. Anne, Mo., younger brother of 1963 champion Chuck, who defeated Norman Holmes of Melbourne, Fla., 6-2, 3-6, 7-5, 7-5.

Nastase breezed by Japan's Toshiro Sakai, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4, and his speed about the court in the last two sets indicated all was well with his ailing back.

Other seeds to advance and join those who progressed Thursday were Russia's Alex Metreveli, the fourth choice who disposed of Australia's John Cooper, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1; seventh seeded lefty Owen Davidson who beat fellow Australian Ernie Ewert, 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 and eighth seeded Jurgen Fassbender, who was forced to save six match points in a 70-game thriller before he turned back Australia's Ray Keldie, 6-2, 5-7, 4-6, 7-5, 15-13.

The tie break does not operate in the fifth set at Wimbledon and Fassbbender, the No. 1 player on the German Davis Cup team, faced his first moment of crisis at 9-all. He served his way out of trouble and got the match-winning break in the 27th game before rounding out the three hour and five minute match in the next.

Keldie was one of three men to play in the tournament in defiance of ATP orders.

Oldtimers at the hallowed grounds in Southwest London opined it was the first time all the seeds were in contention going in to the last 16 in both the men's and women's divisions.

Connors should have no trouble with South African Bernie Mitton, a 4-6, 8-9, 6-4, 6-1, 9-7 winner over compatriot Deon Joubert, in the next round to gain his quarter-final berth, but it will probably be curtains for Mayer, who goes against Nastase, winner of his last four tournament appearances including the French and Italian Opens.

Sports news in brief

By United Press International

YOUNG LAURA Baugh made her professional debut Friday with a sparkling three-under-par 70 to share the first round lead with Sandra Haynie in the Lady Tara Golf Classic in Atlanta.

The 18-year-old former amateur champ mastered the 6,345-yard Indian Hills Country Club course without a bogey only one day after she earned her LPGA playing card.

Tour veteran Haynie eagled the final hole, a par 5 to earn the tie.

OFFICIAL OF THE National Collegiate Athletic Associationand the Amateur Athletic Union Friday declined comment on the Senate Commerce Committee's decision to set up a U.S. Sports Board. Each group favors part of the 35-page amateur Athletic Act of 1973, but both took exception to different sections of the bill.

BOBBY MURCER, fined $250 Friday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for saying the commissioner lacked the "guts" to stop Gaylord Perry from throwing the spitball, said Friday night, "I don't think I deserved to be fined."

Murcer, who met with the commissioner Friday afternoon, also refused to say whether or not he apologized for his remarks. Although Kuhn, in announcing the fine, said, "He apologized for his remarks. In light of the apology, I have limited the fine to $250."

MARKET AGAIN caught her tail aside on the far turn, then rallied from the outside to win going away in the $16,000 feature race at Hollywood Park Friday.

THE NATIONAL Football League Players Association (NFLPA) said Friday an NFL-sponsored study on synthetic turf was "totally inadequate" and asked that the raw research material be made available to their medical advisor.

Japan stars win 2nd consecutive over U.S.

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Texas freshman Richard Wortham gave up a bases-loaded walk to Daisuke Yamashita in the bottom of the ninth inning to force in the inning run as the Japan College All-Stars edged the U.S. All-Stars 4-3 Friday night for their second win in a row.

The victory gave the Japanese team two wins in the first six games of the best-of-seven series.

A passed ball by catcher Pat Russell, after Kiyoshi Nakahata had struck out, and a single and walk loaded the bases in the ninth before Yamashita drew the game-winnjng walk.

The U.S. took the lead twice but each time the the Japanese struck back to tie the game in their half of the innings, despite being outhit nine to seven by the Americans.

Fred Lynn doubled in two runs in the first inning, but Koji Yamoto drove in two runs with a single to give the Japanese a 2-2 tie. Then, after Roy Smalley hit his second home run of the series in the fourth, Japan scored a matching run on a walk, ground out, passed ball, and another ground out in its half of the inning.

Kenjiro Nakamura went the route for the Japanese, while Wortham, who came on in relief in the ninth, suffered his only loss this year. He was 11-0 with Texas.

The series, already clinched by the Americans, winds up Sunday.

WBA seeks end to confusion

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — World Boxing Council (WBC) president Ramon Velazquez scheduled a meeting Saturday with representatives of Thailandese world flyweight champion Venice Borkorsor and Venezuelan challenger Betulio Gonzalez, hoping to sort out the confused situation in the flyweight division.

Gonzalez' representative Rafito Cedeno has opposed a planned fight between Borkorsor and Mexican Julio Guerrero July 6, 7 or 9. Borkorsor's representative, Chana Sapickew, is still hoping to hold the fight.

Borkorsor must meet Gonzalez before August 9, Velazquez has said, in order to comply with (WBC) rules for title defenses. Gonzalez, listed as the WBC number one contender, has a right to the fight before that date.

'Open Choices' good choice for Pomona youth cagers

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — "Open Choices has provided over 200 youth with an opportunity to participate in activities which not only help these young people, but benefit the city of Pomona by building personal pride and fostering pride throughout the community."

The proceeding was the inscription on the plaque presented by Pomona City Councilman Adrian Wright to Jesse Henderson, the Director of Open Choices, for his work in bringing the youth basketball clinic to Pomona.

Henderson, along with Simon Tolbert, Ed Taylor, Curtis Donaldson, Ken Clark, and Ron Byrd have staged a week-long basketball clinic that began Monday and concluded Friday afternoon at Garey High School.

Twenty-nine youths benefited from the experience of these dedicated teachers who, not only enriched the youths talents in the fundamentals of the game, but explained the importance of the necessity of good attitude in becoming better athletes.

As an added blessing, the young people (ages 9-16) had the privilege of learning the cultural arts of the game from Ron Riley, former University of Southern California star and now a member of the National Basketball Association Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

But while the kids benefited from Riley, he benefited from them.

"I feel responsible to young people," said Riley. "When I was young I looked up to the pro players but never had the opportunity to go to camps like these. I feel honored to be able to give my time to teach basketball.

"This (clinic) gives them the opportunity to take pride in themselves. It keeps them off the streets and while they're playing basketball it makes me feel that I had something to do with it," said the former USC recreation major. He also received a plaque from councilman Wright.

Riley, who worked in All-sports camps last year in Claremont Chapman, Pasadena and Gardena, will be in Claremont next month for the National Basketball Association Sports Camp.

The kids who participated in Open Choices were scheduled to play an all-star team composed of the Pomona Police Department Friday. The game didn't go off as planned because the police were unable to field a team.

"I'm sorry the contest didn't take place," said Henderson. "It's good for community relations. The kids are used to seeing them in the cars and only know them as pigs. This would have given them the opportunity to get involved with them on the human level."

Henderson stated much appreciation for those who helped in the clinic and especially Larry Landine, manager of the Garey branch of McDonald's, who furnished the kids with punch, hamburgers, and apple turnovers.

The boys paid the minimal fee of only $2 to participate in the summer program. The purpose of the clinic is to enable boys who could not afford to pay a fee of $100 or more such as is usually charged for most clinics to enroll and particpate.

Open Choices is able to help the boys through the financial support of the Office of Equal Opportunity and through the Greater Los Angeles Community Action Agency (GLACAA).

Major league roundup

Rangers' Bibby hurls one-hitter

By United Press International

Jim Bibby, acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals for two minor leaguers earlier this month, threw a one-hitter Friday night and picked up his second major league victory in pitching the Texas Rangers to a 3-0 over the Kansas City Royals.

It was the fifth straight loss for the Royals.

Bibby, who had a 1-7 major league record coming into the game, allowed only a leadoff double to Fran Healy in the sixth. He walked five and struck out seven. Jim's younger brother, Henry Bibby, was a former basketball star at UCLA and is now with the New York Knicks.

It was only the third start for Bibby as a Ranger and he had lost the first two—one of the losses coming against Kansas City last week.

In other games New York bombed Cleveland 7-2, Baltimore beat Detroit 9-2, Chicago nipped Oakland 4-3, and Minnesota blanked California 4-0. Milwaukee at Boston was postponed on account of rain.

Two solo home runs by Roy White and a two-run blast by Bobby Murcer paced the Yankees over Cleveland and controversial pitcher Gaylord Perry.

Perry had gone through three hitless innings and had a 2-0 lead when the Yanks exploded. White began the barrage with a leadoff homer and after Matty Alou beat out an infield hit, Murcer lined his 13th homer into the right centerfield bleachers.

Earl Williams highlighted a four homer barrage with his first two on the road this season and Doyle Alexander scattered five hits to give Baltimore their fifth straight win as the Orioles downed Detroit.

The loss snapped a four game winning streak by the Tigers.

Boog Powell hit his fourth home run of the season to highlight a three-run first and Al Bumbry hit his fourth with a man on in the fourth.

Williams opened the fourth inning with his ninth home run of the season and added his 10th after Boog Powell walked with two out and Tommy Davis singled. Williams' first eight home runs had all come in Baltimore.

Ed Herrmann's solo homer in the eighth inning proved to be the difference as Cy Acosta came out of the bullpen to get the final out and preserve Chicago's victory over the A's.

The win enabled the Sox to regain first place in the American League West by four percentage points.

Chicago was coasting along with a 4-1 lead in the ninth when Bert Campaneris singled and Bill North walked. Alter Sal Bando doubled in two runs with his fourth hit and Reggie Jackson flied out, Acosta came to strike out pinch-hitter Joe Rudi to end the game.

In National League games Pittsburgh shut out Montreal 4-3, Cincinnati beat San Diego 4-0, Chicago nipped New York 4-3, San Francisco trounced Houston 14-3 and St. Louis edged Philadelphia 2-1.

Bob Moose fired a six hitter and Al Oliver drove in two runs with a seventh inning single to give the Pittsburgh a victory over the Expos.

Moose, who retired 15 straight batters in one stretch, fanned six and walked one in raising his record to 67 while Ernie McAnally, 5-3, was tagged with the loss.

Seventh inning home runs by Pete Rose and Johnny Bench, the latter's coming with two runners on base, broke a scoreless tie and gave Cincinnati a victory over the Padres. Jack Billingham gained his 10th victory against five losses while going the route for the seventh time. He scattered seven hits.

Rose's homer, his second of the season, was an inside-the-parker which touched off the uprising. A hit batsman, and a walk preceeded Bench's 15th homer of the season.

Sports parade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Cosby, the TV personality, comic and sports buff, meant it to be funny.

He had been talking about how the late Jackie Robinson used to steal all the other clubs dizzy, how Cosby's wife never even heard of Jackie Robinson —"she's only 16 and don't know nuthin'"—and then he got around to how much baseball has changed, particularly where the black player is concerned.

"Today's no pressure," said Cosby, who knows both his black history and his baseball history.

"Today is equality. The black player can hit .193 and still be playing. It's the white ballplayer got to hit .417 to stay in there now. So we've come full cycle in our prejudice."

Cosby's comments came at a get-together called for the purpose of announcing the formation of the first National Black Sports Hall of Fame. Allan Barron, publisher of Black Sports Magazine, made the announcement and later on Cosby got up and offered some personal observations on the black athlete.

Most of his observations were designed to amuse.

Sees 'good friend'

He talked, for example, of going to see his "good friend," Bob Gibson pitch in Philadelphia the other night. It wasn't a good night for Gibson. The Phils crunched the Cardinals, 10-3.

". . . All the cats were runnin' and everything was up against the fence," said C9sby. "Bob's gettin' dizzy watchin' the players runnin' around so much. He didn't know I was there...."

But with all the comedy, Cosby still was making some points, and one of them, whether he made it subtly or not, centered around the elimination of the old so-called "quota" which used to exist among baseball teams.

Simply put, the "quota" meant never playing more black players in the ball game at one time than white players. People won't come out to see a club with too many black players, the old thinking went.

Went is a good word, because that is no longer the thinking in baseball today. Certainly not on the field anyway.

Dragging heels

Baseball still is dragging its heels insofar as hiring a black manager, and to a degree, black executives, but even baseball wakes up...eventually...and I have no doubt there will be black managers before long and more black men in the front offices.

As for Cosby's contention that the black player can hit .193 and still stay in the lineup, and it's the white player who has to hit .417 now to hold his job, that's stretching things.

Not that much though.

Earl Williams' average was only a shade or so above .200 when he was slapped with an "indefinite suspension" by Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver.

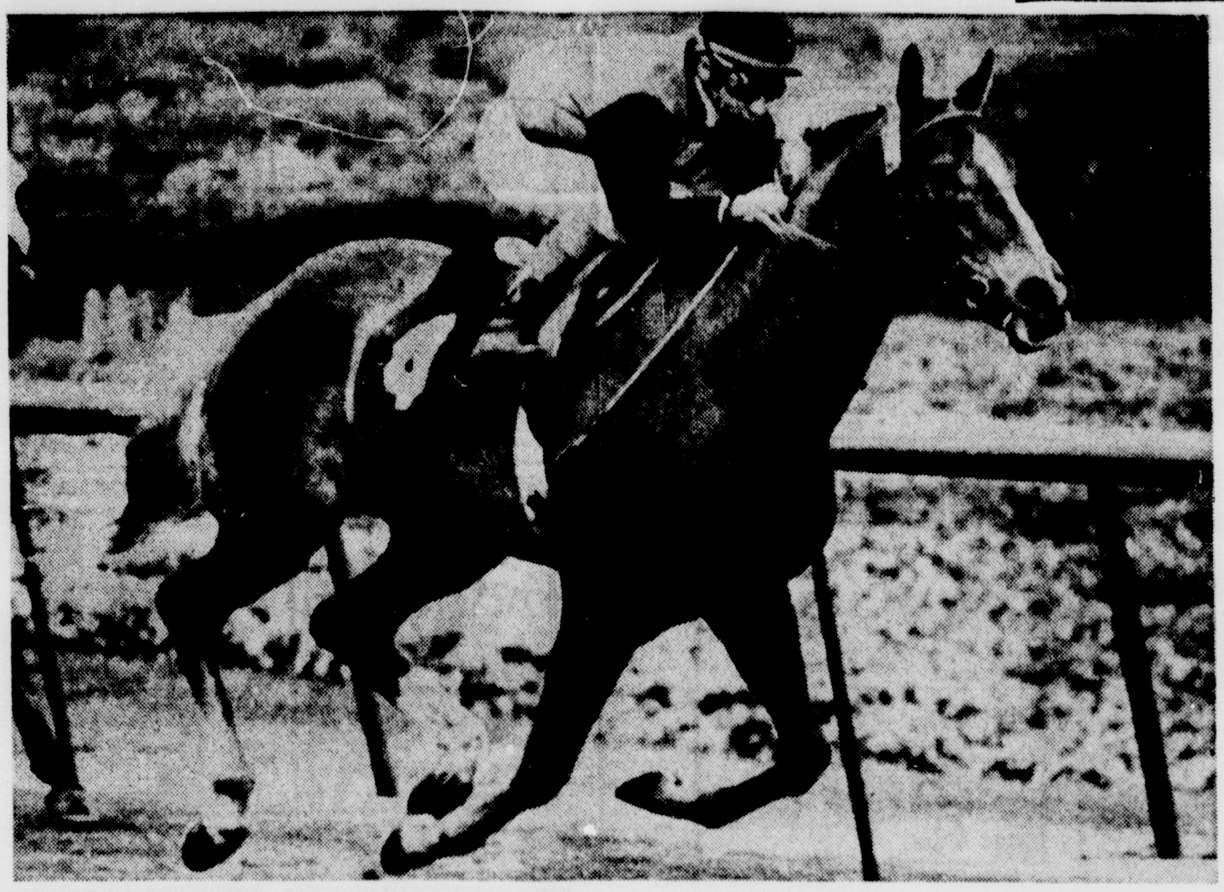
His average, though, had nothing to do with Williams' punishment. What did have was being late repeatedly.

The suspension was indefinite, all right. It lasted all of one day.

Which actually makes Cosby completely right.

Today, as he says, there's no pressure.

That goes no matter what color you are. So what if you're a ballplayer and you're suspended? It's only money, and what's money today, nothing. Like some of the GI's used to tell the noncoms in the Army— go ahead, hurt me, make me a civilian again!



TAKES ON TIGERS—With three straight Hollypark victories under his girth, Expression will step into the ring with the powerhouses of the local three-year-old division today in Cinema 'Cap.

WHA hires Howe glory

NEW YORK (UPI) — The deliverance of Gordie Howe and family to Houston has provided the biggest explosion of a not so mild summer in hockey, but that has accounted for only a few of the ripples in a continuing wave of movement.

Following their coup of signing Bobby Hull last year, the World Hockey Association assured itself of renewed fan interest at the box office in the new season by signing Howe, hockey's all-time leading scorer and a member of the Hall of Fame.

Along with the 45-year-old wing, the Aeros also signed two of his teenage sons, left wing Mark and defenseman Marty, both of whom are said to have brilliant futures before them, and his wife, Colleen, who has some experience in the business side of hockey and will serve as a consultant to the club.

While the name of Howe represents glamor and glory, the WHA also has kept busy appropriating less-talented players from the National Hockey League who will help strengthen the overall structure of the league in its second year of operation. At last count, 11 players who saw appreciable service in the older circuit last season have switched to the WHA.

Among the jumpers were two members of the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens —left wing Marc Tardif and defenseman Dale Hoganson. Tardif, 24, a 25-goal scorer for Montreal, signed a three-year contract with the Los Angeles Sharks while the 24-year-old Hoganson, who was used only sparingly last season, went to the Quebec Nordiques.

Quebec also went to the National League for its new coach and general manager, the colorful Jacques Plante, and also picked up a strong right wing in Serge Bernier, who scored 22 goals and 68 points last season for the Los Angeles Kings.

Plante, known as an innovator during his 17 years in the NHL, including the introduction of the face mask for goaltenders, last played for the Boston Bruins.

The Minnesota Fighting Saints signed three players from the NHL—forwards Mike Walton from Boston and Steve Cardwell from the Pittsburgh Penguins and defenseman Rick Smith from the California Golden Seals.

Walton, who can play at wing or at center, scored 25 goals in only 52 games for Boston last season and Minnesota General Manager Glen Sonmor calls him "a potential 50 goal scorer in the World Hockey Association." With the Fighting Saints, Mike will be joining up with his younger brother, Bob, who set a club record for centers last year by scoring 40 goals for Seattle of the Western League.

Cardwell split last season between Pittsburgh and Hershey, scoring two goals in 20 games with the Penguins and 16 goals in 30 games with the American League Bears. Smith, a strong defenseman, was a member of the Stanley Cup champion Bruins in 1969-70.

The other players to jump over thus far are defenseman Darryl Maggs and goaltender Cam Newton to the Chicago Cougars; center Al Karlander to the WHA champion New England Whalers and defenseman Jim Hargreaves to the Winnipeg Jets.

Maggs split the 1972-73 season between the Black Hawks and Golden Seals, and said he was happy to return to Chicago; Newton spent his season between Pittsburgh and Hershey; Karlander scored 15 goals for the Detroit Red Wings and Hargreaves played 59 games for the Vancouver Canucks before being shipped to Seattle of the WHL.

Last summer, preparing for its first season of operation, the WHA raiding parties swept away some 68 men who had performed in a minimum of 25 games in the National League the previous year. But while this summers signings don't come anywhere near matching that figure, there was no way that they really could have.

For one thing, the NHL takes its rival league more seriously now and has been willing to shell out more money to put its fringe players, really could have.

there was no way that they along with the top stars, under multi-year contracts.

It is doubtful if any of the WHA teams made money last year, but the degree of progress was measured in other ways. For example, the average attendance of all clubs increased almost 1,000 per game following the All-Star break Jan. 6 and the final figures showed an average of 5,298 fans for all games during the regular season, and 5,400 including the playoffs.

New England led the way with an average attendance of 6,981, followed by Quebec with 6,923, Winnipeg with 6,102, Los Angeles with 5,982, New York with 5,868 and Minnesota with 5,855. At the bottom of the list was Ottawa, drawing 3,226 fans per game, and that franchise has since been moved to Toronto.

The only other franchise change was that of the Philadelphia Blazers, who moved clear across the continent to Vancouver. The Blazers got started on the wrong foot when their first home game was postponed because of poor ice conditions and then were unable to compete with the NHL Flyers.

"Frankly, we were all very pleasantly surprised at the results last year from a lot of different standpoints," said Jim Browitt, the league administrator, from his office at Santa Ana, Calif. "The league was able to sign more players of NHL caliber than had been anticipated, but the greatest surprise was the quality of amateur players who came into World Hockey. The young talent that showed up in areas like New England and Minnesota was surprising and they played better than hockey people expected.

Los Alamitos conducts final stepping stone

LOS ALAMITOS — Desi Doll, the tiny two-year-old filly who came to Los Alamitos Race Course with credentials to back up her reputation, will meet the challenge of eight other two-year-olds tonight in the 16th running of the Bardella Stakes, final stepping stone to the $100,000-plus Golden State Futurity to be run at the Orange County track on July 14.

The speedy filly came south from Washington and Oregon where she won six of six races and had accepted over $30,000 in prize money. Along with her impressive record was the fact she had beaten Bay Meadows Futurity winner I'ma On in the $31,000 Tumbleweed Futurity, establishing a new 300-yard track record of 15.76 seconds in the process.

But since coming to Los Alamitos, the swift daughter of Desierto hasn't been close to the winner's circle, finishing far back in a division of the Leo Stakes as the solid favorite and repeating that performance in the Jet Deck Stakes.

Two poor breaks in those races in addition to a rider switch—from Los Alamitos newcomer Kent Storey to Donald Knight—may make the weekend crowed on hand give her a third chance as the public choice.

Desi Doll will be hoping history partially repeats itself tonight in the Bardella. Last year, the Tumbleweed Futurity winner—Love Charge—was a 17.9 second winner of this race but it was later learned he chipped a knee in the race and was sidelined for nearly a year. The Leroy Twiggs-owned filly will be seeking to repeat that victory but not suffer the same consequences.

However, she must face Moon Flyer, Cattitops, Callie Parker, Royal Moon 2, Lori Oldie, Whizard Of Ozz, Milliebelle and Little Tiny Go in the 350-yard sprint.

Royal Moon 2 figures to give Desi Doll most of her competition both on the track and the tote board. The two-year-old son of Lady Bug's Moon began his racing career at Garfield Downs, Oklahoma where he won four straight races, including the Spring Opener Futurity and the Poor Boy Futurity.

In his first start on the West Coast, the Larry Klevetrained gelding was a sharp second back of undefeated Phoebe's Moon Bug, winner of a divison of the Leo Stakes here in 17.88, the fastest clocking of the meeting thus far for a two-year-old.

First post is 7:45 p.m. as Los Alamitos brings down the curtain on its fourth week of activity.

Shoemaker seeks Hollypark repeat

INGLEWOOD — Jockey Bill Shoemaker, fresh from a memorable Hollywood Gold Cup victory aboard Kennedy Road, will combine forces with trainer Charlie Whittingham again today when he rides Groshawk, the likely favorite, in the $75,000 added Cinema Handicap.

Groshawk is the 126-pound highweight for the race which will go a long way toward determining which three-year-olds get invitations to the $150,000 Hollywood Derby. The July 15 Derby, championship event of the summer for sophomores, will be raced at a mile and one-half on the turf, while the Cinema is a nine-furlong grass event.

Three-year-old fillies, many of whom contested the recent Hollywood Oaks, will battle in Sunday's main event at the Inglewood track, the $30,000 added Honeymoon Stakes.

After a disappointing Santa Anita campaign, Groshawk has performed in super fashion at Hollypark. The Graustark colt came within inches of catching Ancient Title in the Inglewood Stakes and has won two ensuing outings, taking the Will Rogers Handicap in his most recent appearance.

Expression, a speedster who has captured three straight races locally, and London Company, an Eastern invader who has rolled to stakes scores in his last three starts, appear to be Groshawk's toughest foes.

However, the Cinema lineup will be a large one and also will include Sweet Medic, Carry The Banner, Gold Bag and the filly Card Table, all of whom have recorded stakes victories this season at Hollywood Park.

Shoemaker also will ride for Whittingham on Sunday when he handles Sphere in the Honeymoon, a mile and one-sixteenth affair which for this season has been moved to the grass.

The "horse to beat" tag in the Honeymoon, though, undoubtedly will be worn by Jungle Princess, who finished third in the Oaks and second in the Senorita Stakes in her last two starts. Sister Fleet, winner of two in a row over the Hollypark lawn, and Meilleur, Merry Madeleine and Rosalie Mae Wynn, all Oaks starters, are among the other more fancied Honeymoon prospects.

Penn State resigns ECAC, may form major conference

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Penn State University said Friday it intends to withdraw from the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC) on July 1, 1974, renewing speculation the region's powers might be on the verge of forming another major conference.

In New York City, ECAC Commissioner Scotty Whitelaw said the objections raised by Penn State—mainly finances— to its continued association with the loose confederation of 214 major and smaller colleges were negotiable. He said a meeting would be held here July 16-18 to discuss them.

Penn State, with little more influence than such smaller ECAC members as Tufts or Muhlenberg, objected to contributing a disproportionately higher share of television and bowl assessments to the conference. It also cited the ECAC's budget deficits of $70,000 in 1971 and $40,000 in 1972 as major reasons for its probable withdrawal.

In a letter to Whitelaw, athletic director Edward M. Czekaj also objected to such ECAC Service Bureau policies as sometimes deleting Penn State All-Americans from all-conference teams and the Nittany Lions' inability to schedule some other members such as Ivy League schools.

Whitelaw confirmed that Penn State had contributed $52,500 of its fiscal 1971 television and bowl receipts to the ECAC—about 16 per cent of its $321,000 budget. He said the ECAC was trying to "find and generate other sources of income."

While conceding Penn State's annual bowl and television assessments have consistently represented "a very large proportion," Whitelaw said he felt other members "would be pleased to be in the same position as Penn State in having a quality program.

"Those who are fortunate to be on national television and in bowl games should be willing to make some contribution to the conference to sustain its operating costs," he said.

Sources at other major ECAC schools, who declined to be identified, said the conference's future would be jeopardized if other powers—Syracuse, Pitt, West Virginia, Temple, Army, Navy or Boston College—also should withdraw.

Seven or eight of the major schools met recently in Philadelphia, the sources said, to discuss the possibility of forming another sports conference that would rank in importance with the Big Ten, Southwestern Conference and the Big Eight.

The May meeting at Temple involved discussions of forming a major football conference and included representatives from Temple, Army Navy, Syracuse, West Virginia, Boston College and Pitt. A Penn State representative, who could not attend, was advised no definite plans were drawn up but another meeting would be held later.

Czekaj told Whitelaw that Penn State's decision followed a "thorough evaulation of Penn State's athletic posture with its continuing goal of providing national leadership in intercollegiate athletics.

American League pleased with record attendance

BOSTON (UPI) — American League attendance thus far is up by a quarter million over the record year 1969 and a half million above last year, the league office disclosed Tuesday.

In 384 dates through June 24, attendance for the 12 teams was 5,375,696, compared to 4,818,651 in 1972 and 5,151,576 in 1969, the league office reported.

Eight of the teams are running ahead of 1972 figures with Baltimore, Detroit, Oakland and Texas showing losses.

Biggest gainer was Kansas City with an increase of 238,117. Milwaukee's attendance has increased by 181,705, California 136,705 and New York 115,720.

Other teams showing increases included: Cleveland 76,523, Chicago, 46,185; Boston, 33,472; and Minnesota, 6,210. Teams showing deficits were: Detroit, -128,787; Oakland, -98,967; Texas -34,843; and Baltimore, -14,995.

UCLA hires crew coach

LOS ANGELES — A coach who founded crew at two schools and a 1956 Olympic gold medal winner in rowing, Duvall Hecht, has been appointed freshman crew coach at UCLA, effective July 1, it was announced by J. D. Morgan, the Bruins' athletic director.

Hecht not only was a successful crew coach at Menlo College (1959-60) and UC Irvine (1956-69), but also was the man who stepped in and started this international sport at each school.

Scientists arrive to 'steal' the sun

Upcoming eclipse changes tribe's life-style

By RAYMOND WILKINSO

LAKE RUDOLF, Kenya (UPI) — Saturday's solar eclipse means a rare chance for hundreds of scientists from around the world to study the planet's movement, but to a tiny African tribe it means strangers have come to steal their sun.

The eclipse will be the second longest in recorded history. The phenomenon has brought hordes of professional astronomers, reporters and the curious streaming into Kenya and Mauritania, the East-West extremes of Northern Africa.

The eclipse will not be visible in the United States. Instead, its totality will begin near the border of Guyana with Northern Brazil in South America. From there, it will move over the Atlantic Ocean and begin its African journey to Mauritania, span the 3,500 miles across Africa to Kenya, touch a corner of the Somali Republic and head out to the Indian Ocean before leaving the earth's sight at day's end.

Scientists are hoping to learn much from the eclipse, ranging from gleaning new information on Einstein's theory of relativity to determining the sun's influence on the weather and the atmosphere.

But the 200 fishermen who make up the Elmolos, the smallest tribe in East Africa, believe the scientists are in Kenya to "put out the sun," according to the female American scientist who has been living among them for two months.

The Elmolos live in round, palm-leaf igloos and, at the moment, are sharing this almost inacessible inland sea with a group of 80 American and European scientists who have pitched camp for the eclipse.

Carole Scherrer, a 25-year old anthroptlogist from the University of Virginia in Charlottesville who has been living with the Elmolos, said the scientists tried to pacify the villagers by assuring them they would put the sun back after using it for a few minutes.

But Miss Scherrer said tribal logic defeated them.

"The elders simply pointed out that to put it back you had to take it away in the first place," she said.

Miss Scherrer said she hopes to live among the Elmolos for 18 months and complete a doctoral thesis on the tribes's social, economic and religious structure.

"The older people are a little apprehensive of scientists,"she said. "They are not too anxious because they know the sun will eventually come back. What they are deathly afraid of is they heard armed raiders from the north may use the elipse darkness to attack their camp."

The Elmolos have hired spear-throwing guards from the more warlike Samburu tribe to protect the village while the darkness lasts.

The Samburus have charged $1.40 per head to protect the village until the end of the year —a staggering tariff for one of Africa's poorest tribes. The Elmolos live solely on the fish they catch and, until recent months, rarely had any money at all.

But the scientific invasion has brought some changes.

"For the first time, there is money in the tribe," the young American anthropologist said. "Boys are earning 100 shillings ($12) a month at the recently opened lodge. Villagers are charging to allow themselves to be photographed."

Even the village itself had to move because of the scientists. A witchdoctor warned the elders that someone would be killed by vehicles speeding through the village, Miss Scherrer said, and after much debate it was agreed to relocate the entire town.

Amnesty for all who refused to fight war urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unconditional amnesty for all those who refused to participate in the Vietnam war has been called for by the American Jewish Congress.

The organization's National Governing Council said in a resolution issued Sunday that amnesty should be "extended to all those who were compelled by their conscience to refuse to participate in the Vietnam war."

"We urge that there be a true amnesty without demands for any form of alternate or national service—a complete 'forgetting' of the past in the interest of reconciliation," the AJC said.

The AJC said amnesty for acts of conscience should be extended to draft refusers, deserters, exiles, those abroad, those who received a less than honorable discharge, and those who have disavowed their citizenship.

The doctor comments

Surgery can repair an aortic aneurysm

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M..

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor tells me I have an aneurysm of the right carotid artery. Since I just noticed this swelling in my neck I asked if it would disappear. He replied that it had probably been eight months in developing before it was noticeable. He tells me there is nothing that he knows of medically to correct it, except to replace it if it gets larger. Could it rupture and cause me to bleed to death? He wants me to have him look at it again in five or six months, or if I start having any trouble. He said he didn't have many cases of this a year as usually the opposite problem occured, that the artery in the nect became blocked with fatty material.

Because of my great concern, would you please tell me if there is any cure for thiscondition, such as strengthening of the walls of the artery to make it stay its normal size.

Dear Reader — Yes, you have a faily uncommon condition. For the benefit of other readers, a carotid artery is one of the main arteries in the neck along the side of the windpipe. An aneurysm means that a sac-like dialtion has extended off the artery. This kind of change occurs in an artery when it loses its normal elasticity and balloons out somewhat like a rubber balloon that's been overstretched, or the ballooned out area that can develop on an innertube.

The usual danger from an aneurysm is that it might enlarge to much and actually rupture. This is true regardless of where the aneurysm is located. If the aneurysmal sac is full of clotted blood, there is danger of clot formation and obstruction, but usually the real concern is the possibility of a rupture of the artery involved.

Carotid arteries can be operated on, this is true whether they are obstructed, preventing blood flow to the brain, or if you have an aneurysm as you have described it.

Sometimes an apparent aneurysm is really a kinking of the artery associated with the way it may be caught or directed around the muscles or other structures in the neck or just because the artery is excessively long and it's kinked on itself. If that should be the case, the excessive length can merely be snipped out and the ends of the arteries sewed back together. In any case, surgery can be done in these instances and it seems to me that what you really need is a consultation from a cardiovascular surgeon.

I note from the address on your leter that there should be a cardiovascular surgeon located within a reasonable distance of your home. The size and nature of the aneurysm you're describing can be outlined with special studies and X-ray procedures. If your doctor has not already done so, ask him to arrange for a consultation with a cardiovascular surgeon.

It's possible that your condition can be corrected without too much difficulty. I must add that not all carotid surgery is simple and without complications, but in many instances there are surgical procedures which can be done for the problem.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lambs new booklet on hemorrhoids, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Hemorrhoids" booklet.

World of animals

A hungry wild bird will approach human

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: I had a delightful experience last weekend with some kind of a little sparrow or something. I know little about wild birds but this one was just naturally tame and flew right down and shared my lunch with me. It was a surprisingly satisfying experience. I just wondered how often this sort of thing happens to people? —N.G.

Dear N..G: A particularly hungry wild bird may take a chance on snatching a favorite morsel of food from a human on occasion; however a bird willing to eat beside you or fly to your hand has, undoubtedly, been tamed by some other bird lover. There is no such thing as a naturally tame, wild bird.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm sure Sundown hates shots as much as I do and I don't want him stuck with any more needles than he absolutely has to have. Is it really necessary to give a horse who doesn't have any wounds tetanus vaccination? —U..G

Dear U.G.: No, Sundown doesn't need tetanus vaccination when he doesn't have any wound; but should he acquire a wound, it would be too late to vaccinate him. In this case, anti-toxin would have to be used and possibly repeated, perhaps along with antibiotics and other injections which Sundown wouldn't have to "suffer" through if he had had the tetanus toxide injection in the first place. Then there is always the considerable hazard that he could develop a small puncture wound — the type so favorable to development of tetanus — and you wouldn't even know about it unitl he actually had symptoms of tetanus. In this case you would either lose hi mor he would at least have to go through a long series of treatments and — if he were lucky — a prolonged recovery period.

Odds are Sundown isn't nearly as sensitive about shots as you are because he doesn't worry about them ahead of time. Certainly where the care of your animal is concerned it makes good sense to practice sound preventative medicine and, in most areas of this country, veterinarians recommend tetanus vaccinations. This is because horses are very susceptible to this disease.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Becky, my 40-pound springer, is, I think, pregnant. If bred 28 days prior, how big should the lumps (puppies) in the uterus be at this stage, briefly? — E. L.

Dear E.L.: The diameter of the uterus at the point that encompasses each developing fetus should be one inch.

Catholics gain in membership

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States Roman Catholic population is up 69,437 over last year. But the number of Catholic educational institutions and students have both declined during the year.

This is reported by The Official Catholic Directory for 1973 (Macmillan). There are 11,258 separate Catholic educational institutions in the U.S., 455 fewer than last year.

The total Catholic population in the U.S. is 48,460,427.

NBC to show life of baseball star Roberto Clemente

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A film drama about the life of the late baseball star Roberto Clemente, killed Dec. 31 in a plane crash while on a mission to help Nicaraguan earthquake victims, is planned for NBC-TV this coming season.

The network asys its 90-minute presentation about the legendary Pittsburgh Pirates' player will deal in a major way with his off-the-field activities, and NBC-TV programming vice president Lawrence White adds:

"The story of Roberto Clemente—the man—is at once enormously inspiring and overwhelmingly tragic. Through nearly two decades of major league stardom, Clemente never forgot his roots or his people, particularly youngsters. No charitable activity was too small to merit his attention, and, in the end, it was one of these missions of mercy which tragically claimed his life."

Killed near home

Bound for Nicaragua with relief supplies, the plane carrying Clemente went down about a mile off the shore of San Juan, P.R., shortly after takeoff from the island which was his home.

Producing NBC-TV's Clemente story will be Screen Gems, which won acclaim several seasons ago for its ABC-TV telefilm "Brian's Song" which dramatized the friendship of a white Chicago Bears' football star, Brian Piccolo, who died of cancer in his 20s, and his black teammate Gale Sayers.

Other special NBC-TV projects in the drama field for the 1973-74 season include:

—A 60-minute work to be written by Truman Capote, "Uncle Sam's Hard Luck Hotel," which concerns a halfway house for ex-convicts, and will be a pilot for a possible series.

Halt crime

The network says this story deals with "ex-convicts trying to stop ex-convicts from committing a crime, using all the methods normally out of bounds for the police and the rest of society. The existence of the Hard Luck Hotel and its manager, also an ex-convict, is threatened when four of the residents use the facility as headquarters to plan a daring crime."

—The two part, four hour production Dr. Frankenstein," a new video adaptation by Christopher Isherwood and Don Bachardy of the famous 20th century novel by Mary Shelley.

This production, set for two-hour segments on consecutive nights, has a cast that includes James Mason, David McCallum, Agnes Moorhead, Margaret Leighton, Michael Sarrazin, Michael Wilding, Jane Seymour, Sir Ralph Richardson, Leonard Whiting, Nicola Pagett and Clarissa Kaye.

NBC-TV notes that the drama which was filmed in England, revolves around Dr. Victor Frankenstein, a young medical school graduate who constructs a pair of creatures —male and female —in his laboratory and gives life to them in his most perfect image of human beings.

The producer Hunt Stromberg Jr., adds "Victor Frankenstein is a young man and he's usually shown as a 70-year-old. Our creature isn't the Boris Karloff figure with the lumbering walk and the bolt through his neck, when he's first created he's beautiful. He's a sympathetic victim, a victim of greed and evil."

Portraying Dr. Frankenstein is Whiting, who starred as Romeo in the Franco Zeffirelli movie version of "Romeo and Juliet." The male creature is played by Sarrazinn and the female creature —Prima —by Miss Seymour. NBC-TV quotes Stromberg as saying, "Isherwood always liked the Mary Shelley story and felt it had never really been done properly."

Return in 'Newman'

Old pros unite in new roles

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Currently shooting here is a movie with the tentative title of "Newman," which shows how important TV has become in training new talent for the big screen.

"Newman" stars George Peppard, whose Banacek series for NBC has made him once again a hot feature film property. His costar is Roger Robinson, who hit it big as the drug addict in "The Marcus-Nelson Murders," the exceptionally fine TV movie.

Producing "Newman" is Richard Irving, who came out of TV—he produced the first Columbo and parts of The Name Of the Game—and the director is Richard Heffron.

"I directed three Banaceks and Toma, a pilot for a new series which has sold," Heffron says. "This is my first feature. I think the Banaceks helped me get this job, because George and I got along so well."

Roger Robinson, who plays Peppard's detective partner in this police movie, credits "Marcus-Nelson" with his big push. Out of that he got a leading role in "Willie Dynamite" and now "Newman."

He comes from a Seattle suburb called Bellevue which he says was a good place for a black youngster to grow up in—it was almost like living in the country. His father worked in a steel mill but wanted to be a singer and he thinks that may be one reason his parents divorced when he was six.

His mother raised the children and, after they were grown, she went to college, got her degree, and now is an elementary school teacher.

"She's proud of me," Robinson says, "but I'm more proud of her."

He wanted to act and tried Hollywood when he was very young, but all he could get was extra jobs. So he went into the Navy.

"I palyed the oboe in the admiral's band at the Brooklyn Navy Yard," he says, "and I studied acting in New York whenever I could."

He did many off-Broadway plays. After his discharge he came out to Hollywood again and made a movie. It was such a disaster he won't even name the film—"it was a horrendous experience, the people weren't nice and the picture was a bomb."

His new film career is different. He says he's been working with nice people like Telly Savalas and Peppard.

"George is the complete pro," he says. "He knows so much about this business I think he'd make a great director."

He still lives in New York and, now that he has some money, he's planning to indulge himself—travel and learn to play the piano.

"Having money," he says, "gives me the time and the capital to do a few things I've always wanted to do. Otherwise, the money isn't important—I did without it for so long that it doesn't mean that much any more."

Serving as technical adviser (T.A.) for "Newman" is a burly ex-Los Angeles Police Department sergeant named Dick Reed. He has worked with Peppard before.

When George did "The Pendulum" in '68, he rode with Reed for a few weeks to get the feel of police work. Reed remembers the day when he was trailing some bank robbers who used machine guns. Peppard was riding with him that day.

"I told George," Reed says, "that if there was any action he should get the hell out of the way. We got a call another bank had been hit so we went over there. I told George to get lost.

"My partner and I went into the bank. I turned around and there was Peppard, a shotgun in his hands, guarding one of the exits. He was doing it right, too. Luckily, the gang had left. But he had seen there was an unguarded exit so he had picked up the shotgun and gone to work."

When Reed retired, Peppard called him and asked him to come in and help the writers with the "Newman" script and he's stuck around as T.A. He's found a few mistakes and earned his pay. He likes it.

Drug problem for actor

It's long road back for Jay Robinson

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA) — There's a light at the end of the tunnel. Jay Robinson can see it now even though it's been a long time coming.

Jay's story — his early triumphs, his fall and now his comeback — is as dramatic as anything you will see on any screen. It is the comeback, that difficult but rewarding period he's now going through which is the most heart-warming.

When he was still in his 20s, in the mid-1950s, he was a big star in Hollywood. He played Caligula in "The Robe," with Jean Simmons and Richard Burton, and repeated the role in "Demetrius and the Gladiators." He had big parts in a string of Twentieth Century-Fox films.

"Perhaps it was a case of too much too soon," he says now. Whatever the reason, he couldn't cope with all the glory coming his way. He had a Bel Air mansion and a Rolls but time was hanging heavy on his hands. Being a stage-trained actor, he didn't know what to do with himself between pictures.

He began experiments with drugs — nothing heavy, he insists, just pot and pills. He was arrested for possession of narcotics. Everything went — the mansion, the car, all his money and his career. His parents died, too.

He couldn't get a job. Even after his conviction was reversed it was tough.

"Those were the bad years," he says. "I got married and we lived in New York. I worked as a fry cook and I cleaned zoo cages. We were poor. We were often hungry."

When he came back to California, he was re-arrested on a technicality. This time, he had to go to jail, and served 15 months. They were traumatic months for a sensitive man.

While he was in jail he heard that "The Robe" was going to be shown on TV for the first time. He asked the warden for permission to watch the movie.

"Why do you want to see it?" the warden asked.

"Because I'm in it" Robinson said.

He was allowed to see it. After the show, a fellow con recognized him as the actor and greeted him with a resounding "Hail, Caesar." That became his prison nickname.

He was released from prison on five years ago. He had a wife, a son, 7, and $339 to his name.

"I found the industry forgiving," he says. "People like Bette Davis, Mike Connors and Greer Garson rallied to my support.

He began his comeback with a role on Mannix, then did two other guest appearances on the same show. He began working regularly on TV in many shows. His first movie role since his release was with Bette Davis in "Bunny O'Hare." He did a bit with Woody Allen in "Everything You Always Wanted To Know About Sex," has a good role in the upcoming "Deadly Honeymoon" and stars in the current release, "This Is a Hijack."

"It was the combination of the love of a good woman," he says, referring to his wife, Pauline, "and my own determination that is enabling me to overcome. Now I feel I may be a better man because of going through all those troubles."

His son, Jay Paul, who is now 12 is now violent on the subject of drugs. Knowing what happened to his father, he wouldn't touch a drug, his father says, for anything in the world. Jay Robinson today often lectures on the subject of drugs and what harm they can do to a person.

At the Gallery

'Fiddler' proves delightful show

ONTARIO — "Fiddler on the Roof," which opened a summer-long run at Gallery Theater Thursday night, has a rich and fascinating book by Joseph Stein based on the stories of Sholem Aleichem), excellent music by Jerry Bock and solid lyrics by Sheldon Harnick, and the local community theater production does full justice to all the components.

Headed by the impressively endowed Duane Thomas, who also serves as musical director, a large and talented cast provides a near-professional production of warmth, humor, pathos and excitement. The musical goes at 8:30 Thursday through Saturday nights.

Mark Shipley directs with disciplined skill; the choreography of Karen Craft and Karmen Roberts is imaginative; and stage manager Steve Curci and his crew keep the ambitious production moving smoothly.

The big musical numbers are superbly done, with fine choral presentation, picturesque ritual dances, enthusiasm and excitement of action. Here is a stirring "Tradition," a show-stopping show-opener; the haunting candlelit "Sabbath Prayer"; a vigorous "To Life" that leaves most of the males exhausted—along with the audience; and the beautiful wedding scene, "Sunrise, Sunset." The wildly grotesque nightmare, "Tevya's Dream," is purely fantasmagoric.

Thomas, as Tevye the dairyman, employs his big, resonant baritone in the demanding role with fine impact, adding wit and perception to his characterization, and displaying amazing dancing ability for a burly 6-footer.

Thomas' rendition of "If I Were a Rich Man" is a comic masterpiece, and he is the pivot and inspiration in all the production numbers. His duet "Do You Love Me?" with Via Valencia as Golde, his wife, is immensely moving.

Miss Valencia offers rich, deadpan humor in her portrayal of the fatalistic, overworked housewife, mother of five daughters, and her fine soprano contributes strongly to "Sabbath Prayer" and "Sunrise, Sunset."

The three older daughters, Julie Carpenter as Tzeitel, Dawn Dewar as Hodel and Denise Scruggs as Chava are charmers, full of fun and love, endowed with good voices and acting abilities that make each of the girls individual, and each in her own way outstanding. Their impish "Matchmaker, Matchmaker" is a gem of humor and poignance, and Miss Dewar's "Far from the Home I Love" is heartbreakingly lovely.

Carl Nelson's Motel is sturdily comic and he displays a fine voice in "Miracle of Miracles." Gary Reinschmidt offers a powerful Perchik and a pleasant solo, "Now I Have Everything." John Silvera as Fyedka shows dancharacterization in a difficult ing ability and a thoughtful role.

Kudos for comedy, warmth and insight go to stubby Nedra Volz, the funniest comedienne on the local circuit, as the witty, fast-talking Yenta, a vital, irrepressible portrayal that won her a major share of the applause at curtain call. Miss Volz, a former professional actress and a favorite of Southern California theater-goers, is nothing but great. (When one of the girls protests that her proposed suitor is bald Yenta snaps "If you want hair, marry a monkey!")

FLYING HORSE—One of the Lipizzan stallions in the Wonderful World of Horses performs the difficult capriole, one of the "Airs Above the Ground." The show by 20 Lipizzaners and 20 other horses will be held at the Forum in Inglewood Friday through July 8; the Long Beach Arena July 9 and 10; the Anaheim Convention Center July 13-15, and Swing Auditorium, San Bernardino July 17 and 18.

Sandefjord Girls Choir to sing at opening concert at the Bowl

HOLLYWOOD — The 75-voice Sandefjord Girls Choir of Norway will present a concert at the Hollywood Bowl at 7 p.m. Wednesday, preceding the Bowl's traditional Fourth of July picnic-concert.

David Zinman will conduct the Los Angeles Philharmonic at 7:30 p.m. in "Tubby the Tuba," with Roger Bobo as soloist; "The Young People's Guide to the Orchestra" by Britten; selections from Walton's "Facade"; two Hungarian dances by Brahms; Ravel's "Bolero" and "The Stars and Stripes Forever." A fireworks display will conclude the program.

On its first American tour, the Sandefjord Choir, under Sverre Valen, has scored numerous accomplishments since its founding in 1956. Seven times the winner of first prize in the competition for youth choirs arranged every year by the Norwegian Broadcasting Corp., the choir captured top award in the British Broadcasting Co.'s international competition, "Let the Peoples Sing 1969." In May 1970, the girls gave three concerts during the Bergen Festival of Music, and during their European tour the same year they gave a concert for the BBC.

OMS rock concert set

ONTARIO — Recording stars Leon Russell and Liggins & Messina will present a day-long rock concert at the Ontario Motor Speedway July 29.

Rock promoter Bill Graham, owner and operator of Fillmore Productions, has invested $10,000 in preparing stage and trailers for the performers and area for 100,000 spectators inside turn three on the grassy infield.

Graham tried to book the Grateful Dead and Waylon Jennings into the speedway in May, but previous commitments of the rock stars and difficulties about time restrictions forced a cancellation.

Fall tube viewing offers wide variety

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

The Programs: NBC-TV, which has been planning a three-hour prime time special on the energy crisis, has set it for a Sept. 4 air date ... The same network also says its new middle-of-the night talk series, "Tomorrow," an hour entry following the Monday-through Thursday Johnny Carson broadcasts, will bow in Oct. 2 ... The previously announced host of "Tomorrow" will be Tom Snyder, nightly news anchorman of NBC-TV's Los Angeles station.

Barbra Streisand, whose career breakthrough was aided by her superlative television specials in the 1960s, will return with another on CBS-TV next season, and Ray Charles is a scheduled guest.

... NBC-TV's July 9 Monday night baseball game for which Danny Kaye will be guest commentator pits the Cincinnati Reds against the Montreal Expos (at Montreal) .. The fall term of CBS-TV's college-n credit "Sunrise Semester" series offers courses in "The World of Islam" and "Twentieth-Century Literature: It's Past and Present" beginning the week of Sept. 23.

NBC-TV is planning two-hour productions of Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" and Arthur Miller's "After The Fall" .. "An American Family," the much-talked-bout 12-part documentary series about a California family that allowed its daily life to be filmed for seven months, will be rerun by the noncommercial Video network starting next Thursday ... National Basketball Association games, seen chiefly on Sundays during their past years on ABC-TV, will also have a number of Saturday outings when CBS-TV takes over the contests this coming season.

The "Perry Mason" series, which returns in a n ver-sion to CBS-TV come fa with Monte Markham in the old Raymond Burr title role, has signed Harry Guardino to play District Attorney Hamilton Burger (Mason's chief courtroom foe) and Dane Clark as police Lt. Tragg ... The heavyweight fight matching America's Joe Frazier against Joe Bugner, the European champ from England will be broadcast from London on "BCS Sports Spectacular" July 8 ... CBS-TV has picked up the former daytime NBC-TV "Match Game" series to replace another, canceled game show, "Hollywood's Talking," as a Monday-through-Friday entry.

ABC-TV's new, fall situation comedy series about a husband and wife who are attorneys representing different views of the law has had its title changed from "Mr. and Ms." to "Adam's Rib"—the name of the Spencer Tracy-Katharine Hepburn movie on which it is based ... CBS-TV is reported planning for next se wo-hour special b old Christmas-themed movie "Miracle On 34th Street," which starred John Payne, Maureen O'Hara and Edmund Gwenn in a tale of a kindly gent who claimed he was Santa Claus ... Gwenn won a supporting actor Oscar for his performance as the old fellow.

NBC-TV says it has completed plans for its "All-Specials Day" scheduled for Thanksgiving, Nov. 22, and nowhere in the program lineup announced thus far is any special broadcast devoted to the fact that the day is the 10th anniversary of the assassination of President John Kennedy ... ABC-TV's recent late-night 90-minute salute to the 20th anniversary of the "American Bandstand" show proved to be a good idea because if you can watch it summarized in 90 minutes once every 20 years, think of all the time you can save in between.

HELEN REDDY, Australian singer, hosts a new television series as a summer replacement for the Flip Wilson Show on NBC. Miss Reddy is a songwriter and dedicated feminist as well as a singer.

Leads trumps too early

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South knew all about the thousands of men walking the streets of London with no soles on their shoes because they hadn't pulled trumps. Hence,after winning the first trick with his queen of diamonds he drew trumps.

Then he led a club toward dummy. West played the three, dummy the jack and East the nine.

Back to his hand with the ace of diamonds to lead a second club. West played the eight. He knew that his partner's nine was showing a singleton or doubleton.

Back in dummy again South had no way to get to his hand. He led a third club with the hope that the ace would have to come up but this didn't happen. Eventually South had to try the heart finesse. It lost as did the slam.

If South had been up on contemporary civilization he would have known that for every man walking the streets of London because of not pulling trumps there were two walking the streets of Tokyo for the opposite reason.

Then he would have led a club at trick two. He would then pull trumps; lead a second club; get back to his hand with the ace of diamonds which he would still be holding; lead a third club toward dummy and make his slam.

What if clubs were 5-1 and the second club got ruffed? Too bad! You can't have everything.

Tourism unit recommended

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — The National Tourism Resources Review Commission recommended to the President that a National Tourism Administration be created in the Commerce Department.

The recommendation was made in a two-year study by the Commission, headed by former Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas, who gave the report personally to President Nixon Thursday at the Western White House.

The President said he would give careful consideration to the recommendation.

The report said some $3 billion has been added to the United States balance of payments deficit by the spending of American tourists abroad.

The Commission found that tourism spending by Americans totalled $50 billion in 1970 and by 1980 that figure would rise to $127 billion.

Nixon said the proposed creation of the Tourism Administration was "to reach the goals of better development of our vast tourism resources and more federal administration of tourism."

Suspect's plea not convincing

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Judge Humberto Decnop Batista did not believe Amadeu Pinto's plea of self-defense and sentenced him to three months in jail.

Pinto told the judge he had acted in self-defense when he beat up Alice de Castro. Pinto is 23, the victim is 76.

$33,151 payoff

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A San Francisco woman, who asked to remain anonymous has won a $33,151 jackpot from a $1 slot machine at Harold's Club — believed to be the top payoff ever from a one-armed bandit.

Scan Profile: Ernest Fisk

He's 'smooth sailor' in rough sport

By PAT SPENCER
P-B Staff Writer

Vermont isn't known for its sailors, but the state has produced a champion in Ernest Fisk, currently captain of the Pomona Valley Geary 18 Sailing Fleet.

Since 1962 when he first took up sailing, he's won some 71 racing trophies and missed maybe 100 others by just a single point.

He's piloted his swift 18-foot sloop-rigged Geary to wins in races all over the Southern California coast. His trophies and plaques take up a sizeable portion of the living room of his Monte Vista Avenue home in San Dimas, which he shares with his wife, Florence, herself a competent sailor, and four boats in the backyard.

Curiously, Fisk's interest in sailing was a spur of the moment thing.

Watched at Newport

"I used to go down to Newport Beach just to watch the boats," he said. "They looked so graceful and peaceful, I became fascinated and decided to get one of my own."

Although he'd never been in a sailboat in his life, Fisk didn't let that fact or his lack of sailing knowledge stand in his way. He bought himself a 13-foot Snowbird, took it to Puddingstone Lake "and just shoved off."

For the next year, he taught himself the basics of sailing. Then one day, he had a chance to ride in the larger Geary. That was the beginning of his love affair with the boat.

"I took it across the lake," he said, "and it was so fast and comfortable, and handled so nice that I wanted one immediately."

Although he's sailed all sorts of boats since then, he prefers the sprightly Gearys. "The bigger the boat," he comments, "the less the fun."

Loves speed, racing

Once he'd mastered the basics of sailing, it was only natural that he would progress to racing.

Natural because, if anything, Fisk is a man who loves speed and definitely likes a challenge.

He developed his love of speed in Vermont and New Hampshire through fun-racing an eight-foot outboard speed boat. Later he built himself a 1937 Ford racing jalopy in which, at age 40, he "won a lot of heats, but never a feature."

He also spent a good deal of time racing motorcycles, vehicles he particularly favors. Before he took up sailing, he continued riding cycles for pleasure after coming out to California in 1956.

Frustration sets in

His previous racing experience provided him with necessary competitive attitude for sailboat racing, but created some frustration when other boats outdistanced him and he "had no throttle to jump on."

Fisk, however, is a man who doesn't give up easily. Despite the initial frustrations, he recalls remarking to his wife at the time, "I'll lick it yet."

And he did, with extraordinary success as his numerous awards attest.

But it hasn't all been "smooth sailing." Fisk has paid his dues and spent his share of time in the water as a result of knockdowns, capsizing and assorted maritime mishaps.

ERNEST FISK

As late as last January, he suffered a dislocated left shoulder when, while sailing alone in Fremont Park in Riverside, his boat was flipped over. Without the use of his arm, he couldn't back into the boat and the cold water didn't help matters much.

Rescue takes place

Luckily, he was able to attract the attention of three young men on shore who swam out and rescued him.

The freak accident made him more conscious of safety precautions, he said. "I had six life preservers in the boat and none on. Now I always wear a life vest."

As energetically as he has mastered sailing, Fisk has been sharing his skill with new members of the sailing fleet he was instrumental in organizing in 1971.

He proudly claims that his students "can take a trophy from me within three months."

Boss gets second

Under his expert guidance, his boss garnered two second places and a first in recent events.

Fisk is currently serving his third term as captain of the sailing fleet which now includes 13 members. Many, like Fisk, are also members of the Pomona Valley Sailing Association which includes other sailing enthusiasts.

In addition to his captaincy, Fisk serves as protest chairman for the sailing association regattas and is a rear commodore in the Geary 18 International Yacht Racing Association and a member of the Southern California Yachting Association.

The sport of sailing is definitely growing in the Pomona area Fisk says, but there is a high turnover rate and the fleet is always on the lookout for new members.

Fleet meetings are held the fourth Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. at the San Dimas Library and newcomers are more than welcome, Fisk says.

And with Capt. Fisk showing them the ropes, they're a good bet to become winners, too.

By CLIFF KING

It's a tribute to the story writer's talent that we get so engrossed in the western tale he's telling, we don't notice that we've seen the same sets dozens of times before. Several TV studios have a "Western Street", typifying a western town of about 1870-1890 vintage. The stores, the saloon, the sheriff's office are all there, but only if you see them from the street.

From the rear, these shells provide facilities where props are kept, actors are made up and various equipment is stored. One fake mountain even hides the studio water tower!

There's nothing fake about our 40 years of service in this community and we wouldn't hide it if we could. We've made lots of friends with our policy of honest dealing on new sets and in our service work. We suggest you check with any neighbor of yours that we have served.

Robbery gang goofs again

ROME (UPI) — Last February a Sicilian gang robbed the wrong train and stole mailbags containing checks they could not cash.

This time the scene was Rome and it was the wrong bank truck. Police said bandits who held up the van Tuesday made away with three bags containing treasury bond coupons stamped "paid." They said the coupons were worthless.

TV violence continues at alarming rate

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Television viewers saw less violence in 1972 than in the year before, but violence was still shown in eight of every 10 programs and nine of every 10 cartoons, according to a University of Pennsylvania study.

Dr. George Gerbner of the university school of communication said in a report released Tuesday that of the three major networks, NBC programs increased in violence and were most violent last year.

ABC programs also increased in violence, and CBS programs showed the least violence, Gerbner said.

His report found that women and non-whites increasingly were being portrayed as victimes of violence leading to what the report termed "an invidious pattern of fear and power."

"Thoce who see themselves in this role are likely to feel victimized also, for the way they see themselves is the way they will think of themselves," Gerbner said.

As a result, women and nonwhites were encouraged to feel fear and panic, he said.

The findings were the fifth in a series of television violence studies conducted by Gerbner and Dr. Larry P. Gross, assistant communications professor. They were based on an analysis of a sample week of network dramatic programs telecast in evening prime time and Saturday daytime during the fall.

The study was sponsored by a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health and was part of a larger study of television's power to cultivate social and cultural values.

Gerbner and Gross used a "violence index" to measure the overall level of televised violence. It was based on the percentage of shows containing violence, the number of violent episodes per show and the percentage of leading characters involved in violent activities.

The study said the percentage of violent programs remained constant since the studies began in 1967. Also, the number of violent episodes per program remained the same—or about 5 per hour and 17 per cartoon hour.

Gerbner said the decrease in the 1972 violence index resulted from a drop in the percentage of leading characters involved in violence. That figure dropped from 73 to 58 per cent.

Money saving lessons

Regal Crest: it's shop for fabrics, aid to consumers

POMONA — The Regal Crest at 395 Pomona Mall East is a fabric shop — and then some.

It's also an establishment where people can learn to help themselves, and, in the process, save money.

In addition to its seemingly endless variety of fabrics, the Regal Crest operates an upholstery school.

"We teach people how to upholster, and, therefore, save themselves money," says Chuck Miller, who owns the shop located near the east end of the Mall. "In six lessons a person can complete a chair or a small sofa for less than $40. That's a saving of almost $60."

Six lessons

Classes are offered every Tuesday and Thursday evening from 7 to 10, and during the day from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The cost of the six lessons is $12.

Miller, who has better than 20 years' experience in the fabric and furniture business, sees himself as a guide to the consumer.

"A decorator can be a guide to the consumer," he said. "A person must have knowledge of a fabric so as to apply it to its proper use. If that is not done, then mistakes result.

"We pride ourselves on our knowledge of fabrics and their proper use and care."

Although his store contains more than 20,000 yards of fabric, Miller refuses to overlook the smallest scraps of material, which he usually puts to good use.

Resourceful

"The only fabric that is thrown away is the fabric that cannot be sewn," Miller said.

An example of his resourcefulness is a custom made leather purse, which is decorated with scraps in a patchwork design.

The shop, which will be a year old Wednesday, also produces bean bag chairs, pillow chairs, and pillow sofas, which feature a "bag in a bag" and top-stitching.

"They are very comfortable," says Miller, "because they are designed to fit a person's back."

ROLLING IN LUXURY—Chuck Miller, owner of the Regal Crest Fabric Shop, relaxes in a custom-made bean bag chair during an infrequent break from his daily business routine.

TAKE YOUR PICK—Customers of the Regal Crest have a wide variety of fabrics to choose from. Over 20,000 yards of fabric—from cotton to velvet—are featured in the fabric shop.

ENJOYING HER WORK—An integral part of any fabric shop is the seamstress. Here, Terrie Mardis prepares to put the initial stitches into what will later be part of a pillow chair.

ROYAL LOOKING—The Regal Crest Fabric Shop is located at 395 Pomona Mall East.

Young writer recalls pains of growing up

By CARL H. READ

LOOKING BACK: A Chronicle of Growing Old in the Sixties, by Joyce Maynard. Doubleday, $5.95.

Precociousness can be cause for annoyance, for admiration or for envy on the part of an older generation viewing it in a youngster or even an "older youngster." Joyce Maynard certainly qualifies as precocious. Her book is an amazingly mature look at herself growing up in the turbulent sixties.

(Carl H. Read is associate professor of education at La Verne College.)

She displays a disarming frankness in analyzing her feelings and her actions and reactions as she records not only her own reactions to her environment, but also those of her peers.

This book is a must for any parent in any generation. Each generation growing up encounters its own stresses, its own tensions, its own idiosyncrasies. Yet careful examination will indicate that there is sufficient similarity from generation to generation to give pause to those who roll their eyes toward the heavens and cluck ominously, "What is this younger generation coming to."

According to her account, Miss Maynard was a perpetual wall-flower at all school social functions but perpetually hopeful as she participated in all school activities from class meetings and pep clubs to being in charge of decorating for school dances which she dressed for as carefully as though she had a date, went dateless and danced with other girls all the while pretending to "be having a ball."

One might suspect, judging from her picture on the book's dust cover, that Miss Maynard was one of those young girls who grows rapidly to a tall gangly stage during a period when, if boys are able to bridge the sex gap at all, they show a preference for the smaller cute girls with the more mature figures.

This has always been one of the tragedies of youth. In the light of this reviewer's years of experience with high school age youngsters, their social functions are overemphasized and become a somewhat traumatic experience for a great number of girls, generally about two years more physically mature than boys. The general situation results in a two to one ratio of girls over boys who are socially ready for dances and dates.

So Miss Maynard grows up with a prodigious memory for experiences, events, feelings that many youngsters might prefer to forget. It makes for interesting reading right on through to 1972 and her first years in college in which she deals with such questions as to whether a girl in her position "should or shouldn't" indulge in sexual intercourse though unmarried.

Her reactions and those around her to the happenings of the world and society TV, Vietnam, politics, religion and so on make for interesting reading. If one makes a little effort to recall his own youth, he will discover that the youth of any given generation will not be greatly different from any other.

Book of India depicts story of the moguls

By MARY WALKER

THE PEACOCK THRONE: The Drama of Mogul India, by Waldemar Hansen, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $12.50.

This is one of the better popular histories of India's Mogul dynasty. It is an absorbing narrative, solidly researched and well organized, by a lecturer and historian long familiar with India and her past.

(Mary Walker is a staff member of the Pomona Public Library)

Taking the celebrated Taj Mahal as his starting point, the author narrates the history of the Moguls. He has drawn his materials from accounts of European travelers and from translations of Mogul chronicles themselves.

Much of the narrative is written in a dramatic style. The personalities of the actors in this great drama are highlighted with great detail and raciness. The author has re-created the bloody and disastrous War of Succession which involved the Shah's four sons, his daughters and numerous palace officials. The War of Succession paved the way for British rule and a host of conflicts that affect India to the present day.

Hansen vividly evokes the atmosphere of courtly opulence, blood thirstiness and intrigues which seem to surpass even that of the Medicis. The gory court intrigues make horrifying but compelling reading.

Seventeenth Century India, in all its contrasts of opulence and squalor, violence and love, mysticism and war, is the background for Hansen's compelling prose.

Newest anthology provides enlarged picture of Frost

By SAMUEL I. BELLMAN

ROBERT FROST: POETRY & PROSE. Edited by Edward C. Lathem and Lawrance Thompson. Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $7.95.

Robert Frost, America's most famous poet in this century, has been unusually fortunate in at least two ways . . . aside from having a poetic mind and a pronounced verbal ability.

(Samuel I. Bellman is professor of English at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona.)

His generally direct statements about 'works and days' have been successfully pitched to the understanding of a mass audience. As far removed from the jangling doggerel of Edgar Guest & Co. as he was from the rarified intellectualisms of Wallace Stevens, Frost demonstrated for half a century that in the realm of serious poetry Supplier and Buyer could still meet on easy terms and strike a satisfactory bargain.

Like Walt Whitman before him (from whom he differed in so many ways), Frost was a man and a writer of the people, the street persons and homebodies equal with the academics.

In what other way was Frost fortunate? He has had excellent biographers and commentators, such as the

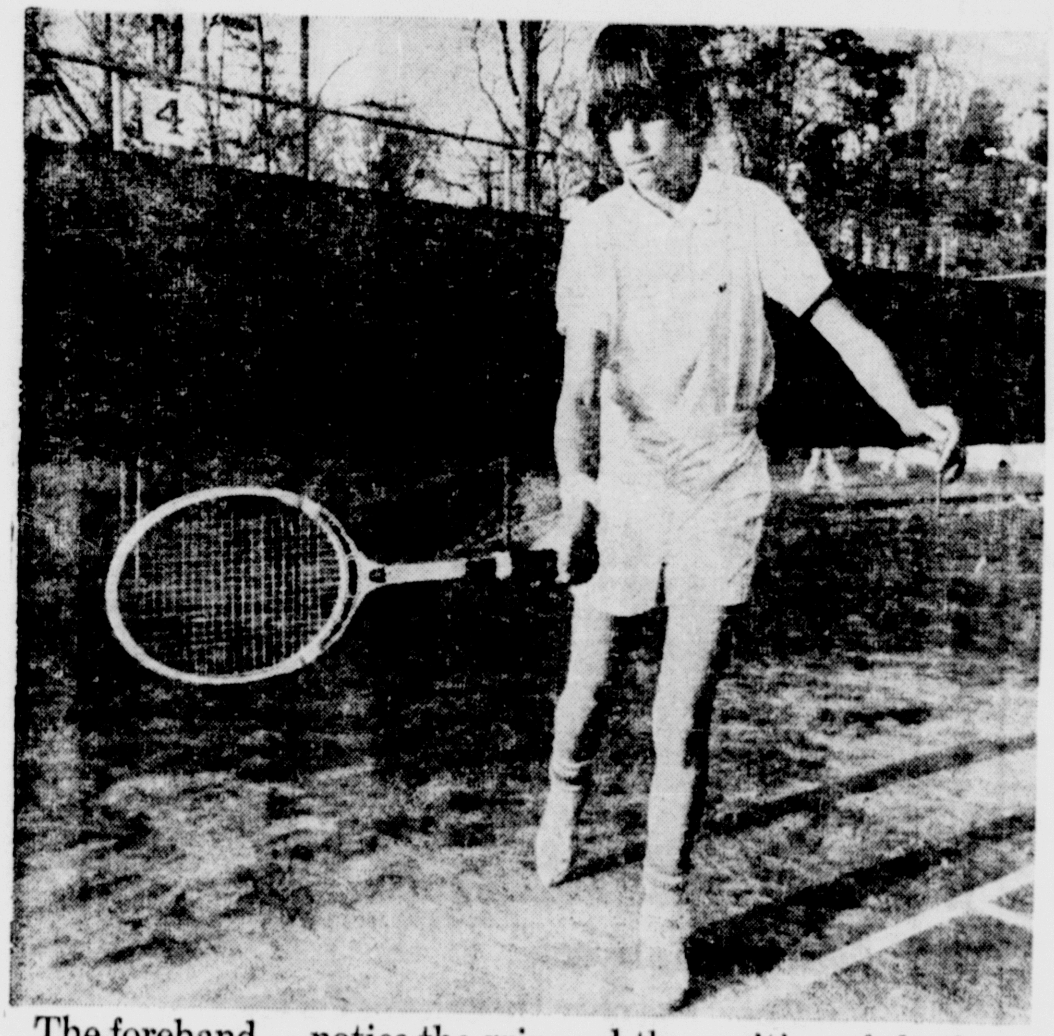
Why Not Serve Up a Good Game: Play Tennis



The forehand — notice the grip and the position of the feet.

The backhand — again, notice the grip and feet position.

Tennis is becoming more popular every year. By the end of the 1960's, the ten million tennis players in this country outnumbered the golfers by a million.

Here are some pointers for beginners:

1. Be alert and ready for shots. Keep your eye on the ball. Keep your knees bent and lean forward a little, so your weight is on the balls of your feet.

2. As soon as you see in what direction the ball is coming, swing the racket back, keeping the face perpendicular to the ground.

3. Step into the direction you wish to hit the ball.

4. For the forehand, contact the ball beside the forward foot with the racket perpendicular to the ground.

5. For the backhand, contact the ball in front of the forward foot with the racket perpendicular to the ground.

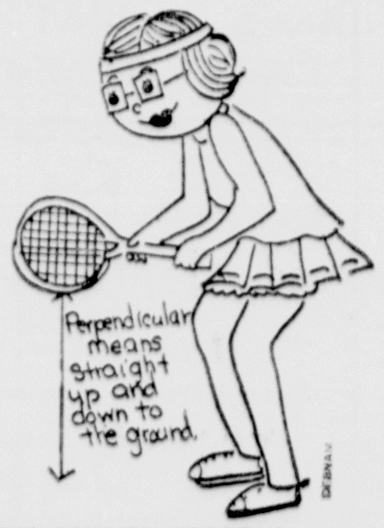
6. Carry the ball on the racket face as long as possible toward the target.

7. Follow through high with an upward and outward movement still keeping the racket face perpendicular to the ground.

The Grip

There are three types of grips commonly used. They are the western, eastern and continental. The most common are the eastern forehand and backhand.

For the forehand grip, you simply shake hands with the handle held in a perpendicular position. For the backhand, you turn your thumb slightly under the racket for about one eighth of a turn to the right.



The ready position — keep your eye on the ball, knees bent and lean forward on the balls of your feet.

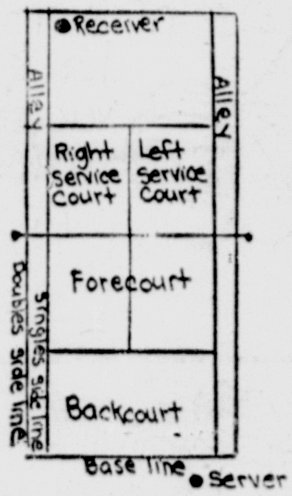
To Serve:

1. Stand with both feet behind the base line with the toes on a line that points to your target.
2. Toss the ball as high as you can reach with your racket and slightly to the right front of your body.
3. Contact should be made with the racket arm fully extended and the racket face pointing toward the target.
4. After contact, let the racket swing naturally out and down by the outside of the front leg.



Good tennis players:

- Know and obey the rules and etiquette.
- Call the balls fairly, since your opponent might not be able to tell whether a ball he hits is in or out of the court.
- Practice and take lessons, if possible.

Super Sport: Stan Smith

Stan Smith, the winner of the 1972 Wimbledon singles' crown, also won the 1972 Martini and Rossi Gold Racket Award. This award is presented by a panel of international tennis writers to the player they consider to be the best in the world.

Smith is a deeply religious, self-made man. He says that some day he would like to build and manage a YMCA. He grew up in Pasadena, California, and did not start playing tennis until he was in his teens. He played in and won several important tournaments while serving as an enlisted man in the Army. Now out of service, he has a home at Hilton Head, South Carolina, where he is a pro at one of the clubs.

Super Sport: Margaret Smith Court

Margaret Smith Court is considered one of the finest tennis players ever. She started playing the game at the age of nine on a clay court across from her home in Albury, Australia. During the 1960's and 1970's, she won three Wimbledon championships, three German, Italian and French championships, nine Australian championships and four U.S. championships. She retired from tennis in 1966, saying she was tired of traveling. In 1967, she married Barry Court and he insisted that she return to the game. He and their small child travel with her.

How do you score in tennis?

Zero is love
One point is 15
Two points is 30
Three points is 40
Four points is game

If both sides have three points, the score is "deuce" and a player must win two points in a row to win the game.

A set is when either side has won at least six games and is ahead by two games. There is a new choice in scoring sets. You can play out a set in the regular way, or, if you are at the score of 6 games for each side, the players can play a best-of-nine points to break the tie. The winner of the tie-break wins the set 7-6.

A match is usually made up of winning two out of three sets. If one side wins two sets in a row, the last set is not played. In tournaments, men play matches of three out of five sets. Women play tournament matches of two out of three sets.

Where wink often can be giant step

Call her Irene.

When at age 8, she got into the program two years ago, she was as close to being a "vegetable" as a human being could be.

She was deaf and almost totally blind. She couldn't talk and she wouldn't walk. She would merely lie on the floor by the hour, moaning, her hands and feet up in the air.

She would accept food if someone forced it between her teeth, but she would not chew it.

Today Irene is walking. She frequently falls, but she gets up and tries again. And while she still doesn't feed herself, she cooperates and chews her food. And she is learning sign language.

Irene is one of 51 students at the county's school in Glendora for multi-handicapped children. The school is run by Donald Welch of La Verne, a former teacher of mentally retarded children.

It is a training ground for the "untrainables," where children learn the simpler functions of life and are taught to use what nature has given them to the best advantage.

When a child learns to recognize his toilet needs, or acquires the necessary finger dexterity to button his clothes, it is a milestone in his life. When he learns sign language or begins to understand concept, it is an almost sure sign that he will soon be ready for a more advanced training program.

The school was established by the Azusa Unified School District five years ago as a pilot program to answer a need in this area to train children who were classified "too difficult" for what the conventional school could offer.

To be eligible for acceptance, the children had to have at least two handicaps—legal blindness, legal deafness (both below school standards), orthopedic disability, speech or sound impediment, mental retardation and others — handicaps which made it impossible for them to take part in existing school programs.

The project was established for those between 3 and 9, but later it was extended to 16, and now goes to 21.

During the school's formative stages, Welch, the father of five children, none handicapped, was consultant in special eduation at the Azusa district. He became coordinator of the school when it was organized, and he stayed with the program when it was transferred to the county two years later.

Today, students from 13 districts—Azusa, Glendora, Pomona, Claremont, Bonita, Walnut, Charter Oak, Rowland, Covina Valley, West Covina, Bassett, Baldwin Park and Hacienda—attend classes under specially trained teachers, teacher aides and participating mothers. Even students from nearby high schools help out.

What textbooks there are, the teachers have helped write. The program has been praised and emulated by other schools which have sprung up throughout the country in the past five years.

Chino's claim to fame

By the year 1904, Pomona's sister city, Chino, in addition to its flourishing beet sugar factory, had achieved another interesting claim to fame. In those days it was known as the town most likely to be selected by Pomona's gay blades as the place to go when they were fortunate enough to have a night out. And here's the reason why.

At the November election of 1902, Spadra had gone dry. Azusa was a strictly prohibition community. Covina, Ontario and Claremont always had been so. And, according to the editor of The Pomona Daily Review: "Pomona will never again be in the column of 'wet' towns." Which just goes to show what poor prophets editors can sometimes be. — However, Pomona in those early Nineteen Hundred years was still in the throes of righteously repenting its earlier, more sinful days and was piously "enjoying" prohibition. So it was not surprising that when the bibulous gentry of Pomona and environs felt the urge to slake their thirst, one name and one alone would come immediately to mind; for by the year 1904 Chino was the only reasonably close "wet" town in this entire area. And thus, by virtue of that somewhat questionable distinction, Chino had become a welcome spirit fermenti oasis in what would otherwise have been just a beautiful but unfortunately legally and throat parchingly dry inland valley.

Success is relative, and at the school for the multi-handicapped, it is frequently measured by the flicker of an eye.

"Many of the children we get are so withdrawn," Welch explained, "it's almost impossible to get through to them. Our first task is to establish some communication—find a basis for some relationship."

To do this, the teacher somehow must first get the child's attention and interest.

"This is more difficult than it sounds," Welch explained. "What do you do, for example, with a mentally retarded deaf child who seems to want nothing more out of life than to rock back and forth on his back in all his waking hours?"

In that particular case, the child reacted to a shrill sound—perhaps the first sound he had ever heard—and his teachers were able to capture his attention through that sound.

Next, immediate reinforcement in the form of praise or holding, or pleasurable acts or food were given upon the performance of a desired act.

When communication is reasonably well established the more sophisticated tasks, such as social interaction, instructions and concepts, are tackled.

Communication, throughout, is the vehicle by which the students progress.

In the case of Irene there were special problems. Deaf and virtually blind, with an orthopedic handicap that prevented any coordination, she would scream whenever she felt anyone near her.

After much experimenting, teachers found that her eyes would be attracted by a strong beam of light. She would be so enthralled by the rays coming through her limited eyesight that she would permit others to move her arms and legs about. And to see the light better, she accepted glasses.

This, of course, opened up a new world for Irene. She quickly learned finger spelling, and then went on to sign language, allowing communication to take hold between herself and her teachers.

At the same time, she began working on her dormant arm and leg muscles, and now she is one of the most promising studnts in the school. If she continues to improve, she will graduate into a "categorical program" which already has accepted several of the multi-handicapped.

The "categorical" designation includes such programs as schools for the legally blind, the deaf, the mentally retarded and others.

There are no great strides visible in training these children, and teachers get their "highs and peaks" from a breakthrough in communications, or in finding new ways to teach.

"Everything is wide open," Welch said. "There is no such thing as the accepted way. This is one program that truly can challenge the creative person."

Perhaps this is one reason why the schools have no problems getting qualified teachers. There is a tie-in with Cal State Los Angels, which has set up a training program in special education, and supplies student teachers for Welch.

That the program has gained wide acceptance is evidenced by the county's plans to consolidate the three locations of the school under one roof. When that happens, the school will expand.

Welch says that for every child who attends the school for the multi-handicapped, there are at least two who are either spending time in an institution or have not been identified.

He said it was to the best interest of multi-handicapped children that their parents identified them as quickly as possible, so they could get help as early as possible.

"I can't promise anyone a place in the school," Welch said, "but when we can take additional children, we have to know where they are."

He said the parents can begin the process by notifying their school districts. School superintendnents have the authority to begin transfer proceedings.

Contemporary styling lends freshness to age-old materials in this home. The broad column of the stone chimney rises from a planter well at one corner of the house. Vertical board-on-board siding, stucco and fluted glass combine for design interest beneath a rugged shake roof. A screen of basket-weave rattan shields the stone entry landing.

The dramatic corner fireplace in the living room is open on two sides. Thus a hearth fire can be enjoyed from all parts of the room, as well as the dining area. Wide banks of windows light both the front and side walls of the living room, and large glass doors open the dining alcove to the patio, extending the living area to the rear garden.

A second door leads from the patio to the service area, making it easy to serve outdoor meals and refreshments in summer.

A corner eating area, built-in range and oven, wide counter surfaces and a broom closet make the kitchen a convenient, step-saving place for housework. Washer and dryer are in the service area. The three-quarter bath, handy to the work area and patio, also opens to the master bedroom.

Fluted glass panels provide light for the double garage. A storage shelf across the back provides a place to hide away unused household equipment. Ample space at the side allows for the storage of lawnmowers, bicycles, etc.

This same exterior is also availeble with a different three bedroom floor plan, at a different price structure, and is illustrated in our book, Distinctive Homes.

Complete working drawing for plan 3628 can be purchased for only $11,50 for the first set and $6.30 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until November 1, 1973. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.05. The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes—$1.31; Hallmark Homes—$1.31; Homes by Hiawatha—$1.31; Prize Homes—$1.31; Town & Country Homes—$1.31; Ranch & Modern Homes—$2.10. All six books—an $8.65 value for only $6.83. Orders for less than three books, please add an extra 20c per book for postage and handling. Prices include sales tax. Send all orders to: Hiawatha Estes, Box 404-PO Northridge, California 91324.

Anthology of Robert Frost poems

two men who have edited this first-rate Frost collection (which the publishers have simultaneuosly issued in a Rinehart Editions paperback); Lawrance Thompson, now completing a three-volume life of Frost, is the poet's official bographer, and eminently worthy of the task.

This new addtion to the Frost "line" is not a mere rehash, a tiresome publisher's put-together, it is a lively, compelling, insistently recommendable look at the many sides of Robert Frost, the unpleasant equal with the pleasant. . . it is a book that one honestly won't want to put down, for there is so much of the unknown Frost included here and the familiar Frost is well worth re-reading again.

The first part of this 480-page book is given over to a brief chronology in San Francisco—born 1874, died in Boston 1963, won four Pulitzer Prizes, launched his career in England, farmed in New England, had prestigious academic positions all over the place, including Harvard and to selections from his 11 books of poetry beginning with "A Boy's Will" (1913) and ending with "A Masque of Mercy" (1947).

The second part, which is the real kicker, since Frost's published poetry is so easily obtainable, gives us facets of Frost (the old "fire and ice" man) we would otherwise miss.

Frost the "poultryman-writer": Three fascinating stories for chicken farmers, published in 1903 and 1905. Frost the father, writing little "stories for his children" (three unpublished pieces are included here). Frost the philosopher on life and opetics: Notebook jottings, interviews, articles, fugitive pieces in a variety of publications. Frost on the subject of salvation: "I'm not the kind of man who thinks the world can be saved by knowledge. It can only be saved by daring, bravery, going ahead."; Frost on the subject of poetic style: "For my pleasure I had as soon write free verse as play tennis with the net down."

There is so much that is valuable and heartening (even some downright ribaldry by the many-sided Frost) in this superb collection that no summary is necessary. One wonderful poem sticks in the mind, though, "The Offer" (which was not published during his lifetime but was included in a letter to Louis Untermeyer in 1932).

Wrote the sorely vexed Frost (who had many troubles, despite all the clamour and academic fame), the 'man agains the sky' with his 'desert places': "I narrow eyes and double night; But still the flakes in bullet flight — More pointedly than ever smite.— . . . .— Am I, are they, or both to melt?—If I supply the sorrow felt,— Will they supply the tears?"
